The Moon and Radio

Americans Really Fly

He Killed a White Boy

—By Arthur Brisbane—

CHINESE BRIGANDS who recently murdered two female Protestant missionaries, when ransom was refused, now hold for ransom 10 nuns and demand $10,000,000 Mexican for their release.

To pay the gigantic ransom would put in danger every missionary and other foreigners.

To refuse means, probably, the death of the devoted and unfortunate Catholic sisters.

Unless the nations have lost capacity to get excited about anything, they will do something about that.

On the South Pacific island of Niaufou, where scientists were successful in photographing the eclipse, this strange thing happened: As the moon passed between earth and sun, shutting out light, it also shut out whatever it is that enables us to send radio messages. While the eclipse lasted the radio would not work over the Pacific. Scientists could send no radio messages.

That would interest Zoroaster, who taught men to worship the sun.

Kingsford-Smith flew the Atlantic, the Pacific and now, having flown from London to Australia, announces in the city of Brisbane that he makes long-distance flights no more.

He obeys the orders of a young woman soon to be his wife.

Flying increases in the United States. And big companies, led by United Aircraft, constantly develop bigger, better planes.

President Hoover, in co-operation with the Postmaster-General, is in all proper ways compelling planes that carry United States mails to carry passengers, and to have adequate passenger equipment.

The Paddington line runs planes every hour on the hour between New York and Washington in 1 hour and 50 minutes, carrying about 3501 passengers daily, over ordinary gasoline at 10 cents a gallon, the fare 20 to 30 cents per passenger. Washington at 105 miles an hour for $3.25 worth of fuel.

Is not something for the railroads to think about.

Mr. Larry Hogan, colored lightweight, is a hard hitter and looks it. He fought with Carl Baldus, white, to make money for himself, and for politicians and other leeches that bleed prize fighting as other rackets are bled.

Mr. Hogan, colored, left the ring, expressing sincere sorrow, Carl Baldus, the white man, was carried out, dead.

Evidently not in good physical condition to earn money for promoters, he collapsed and died in the third round.

Mr. Hogan, held on a "technical" charge of manslaughter, was released next day.

If it hadn't been a prize fight and Hogan had hit Baldus in the street and killed him, Hogan would go to jail.

But it's "something else" when a thing happens in prize fighting, organized to enrich gangsters and corrupt politicians, and making a jest of the law against assault and battery.

Dr. Burgin, British member of Parliament, has inspected here and doesn't care for us. Says he, "No country in the world is as hard on their unfortunate and poor as the so-called prosperous continent of America."

And, says he, we don't save, have no thrift or foresight, and our "poor law savors of Prussianism."

Anyhow, we have 25,000,000 automobiles running, and more bathtubs in one American city than there are in the whole British empire.

Let us not be downhearted.

A League of Nations report shows that practically all the world's illicit drug trade is centered on the United States, financed here to the tune of millions and has gigantically increased since prohibition came in. It is easier to hide a few ounces of cocaine or morphine than to hide a keg of beer. And a small package of drugs can do more harm than 1,000,000 kegs of beer.

The gangster politicians and politician gangsters of New York "take things as they come."

Mr. Kresel, investigating conditions on behalf of the high court, finds a $1,000,000 vice ring working the courts of New York city.

The important part of their work is frightening and blackmailing women.

ART MUSEUM'S EXPERT CALLED IN SWINDLE

Thompson Favors Wide-Open Expose, but Will Consult Counsel First

Herbert E. Thompson, art expert of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, was called before Dist. Atty. Foley this afternoon for questioning in the expose of the multi-millionaire dollar art swindling ring.

At the same time Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle stated that the ring had been conducting its activities on an international scale and that every art critic of prominence in Massachusetts who may be able to throw light on the investigation will be summoned for questioning.

Dyonis Bayley Stout will be questioned today, he said.

WANTS GENERAL EXPOSE

Thompson, who has been in charge of restoration work at the museum for many years, asserted he thought the time had arrived for a general exposure of the whole affair, and commended Inspector Warren Liese.

He was questioned regarding two paintings, it is understood, and declared he could give plenty of information, but wished to consult with museum officials first.

"I personally believe this thing should be blown wide open but I can't decide that myself," he said. "I am here under summons and will know after I talk with the museum counsel what my rights in the matter are."

Despite recent denials of museum officials the district attorney has been inquiring into purchase of bogus paintings by the Boston institution.

WILL QUESTION OTHERS

CURLEY GETS GOVERNOR'S IS. FOR AIRPORT

War Dept. Concedes City's Claim After Mayor's Call on Hoover

Washington, Oct. 23—Governor's Island, in Boston harbor, will be turned over to the city of Boston for conversion into an airport, the largest and most elaborate on the Atlantic seaboard, it was announced here today after Mayor James M. Curley of Boston had held conferences with President Hoover and Secretary of War Hurley.

"It will be necessary only for the said Mayor Curley to forward a letter to the War Department asking for the transfer of the island, which will embrace also a reservation claimed by Deer Island for emergency use, and he will be turned back to the War Department for military use.

"The title of the island will not be given over to the city because it is a military title and can only be conveyed to another party permanently. The city of Boston, however, will have permanent use of the island, except in cases of an emergency, and will pay a rent probably of $1 a year. I am perfectly satisfied with the arrangements."

Mayor Curley had previously discussed the project with President Hoover, who said he had no objections to the city's taking over the property provided it was agreeable to the war department.

The plan is to fill in all the water and flats now lying between the present airport and Governor's Island, making the whole one great

American Plea for Odd Jobs Wins Quick Work for 100 Men

(Have you an odd job to be done? Call the Municipal Employment Bureau, Liberty 8607, or mail the attached coupon.)

The immediate anxiety of many men and women lightened, hopes raised, hungry mouths satisfied.

This by odd jobs—cleaning yards and general work given to the needy and destitute by men and women of Greater Boston.

Men and women who answered the suggestion of the Boston Evening American by applying to the Municipal Employment Bureau for workers gave them not charity but employment.

That was the first day's accomplishment.

Again today Church st. was trod by unemployed who jammed into the narrow corridor of the employment office and stood seven deep before the rail.

The biggest immediate aid yet given the unemployed here came today when Carl Dreyfus, philanthropist and trustee of the Boston City Hospital, announced that 100 men would be hired immediately through the Municipal Employment Bureau.

"We have decided to put 100 to work at once on various projects instead of waiting until later, as planned," he said. "The trustees have been very much impressed by the suggestions made in the Boston Evening American.

"One of the first things to be done is the laying out of parking space for 100 automobiles of physicians and visitors, and this will take at least 20 men. We also will do screening and repairing now, instead of later. We are to paint three wards and will add fire-escapes immediately, rather than at a future date.

"At the Mattapan Sanatorium we are going to landscape the grounds and this calls for building a new road in front of one of the new buildings which will be opened soon, also for planting shrubs and trees, and laying out a croquet grounds for the patients. This work will require 50 men."

A good-natured crowd that stormed the employment bureau today could hear the telephones ringing back of the partition. A call, a job, or two or three. Thirty-eight calls and 58 jobs Wednesday. Another busy day today for the force of 10 under Director John J. Shields.

IDEA CATCHES ON

Painters, house cleaners, mothers' helpers, truck drivers, laborers, janitors, repairmen, carpenters, clerks, one guide, mechanics, men to distribute circulars—wanted.

The appeal caught on. Those who telephoned with offers of employment praised the idea, said they had work for willing hands to do, some for a day, more for several days, some for a month or long-er.

Getting the jobs cost the workers nothing—luckily, for they had so little with which to pay and could not afford to sacrifice a part of their earnings. Out of work too long for that.

It caught the Governor's fancy, too. He appealed to industry—to everybody—to respond. And so did Mayor Curley and Secretary Melville D. Lining of the Chamber of Commerce.

The crowd was so big outside the little building on Church st., which years ago was a fire station, that a continuation school custodian, who went in person to hire three assistants, could not get through to the office.

He hired three men from the fringe of the throng.

A quarter of those who were given work were women and girls. Three-fourths were men.

Calls came from Malden, Medford, Wollaston, Somerville and

18 TRAPPED IN GREAT RUM RAID

Eighteen men, charged with smuggling, among them a captain of the Salem fire department, were arrested early this morning after a battle in which tear gas was used following the seizure of 800 cases of liquor valued at $150,000 in Marblehead.

The seizure, one of the largest on record in the state, included 500 cases of choice whiskies, two loaded trucks an empty truck and a touring car. A sloop from which the cargo was landed escaped in the darkness.

Police of Lynn and Salem aided Marblehead authorities in the capture of the smugglers, which resulted from the discovery yesterday of 200 cases of whiskey cached on the mud flats off Beason's Beach, where they were covered by the high tide.

While Marblehead police waited in the darkness for another landing, for which they noted preparations yesterday, Salem and Lynn officers blocked every avenue of escape from the town.

Patrolman George Kelley, of Marblehead, a member of the squad that swooped down on the smugglers on the wood-fringed beach, was severely burned by a tear gas cartridge fired in his face.

The Salem fire captain arrested was Edward Flynn, who admitted his city position and gave his home address as Loring ave., Salem. The others arrested, all charged with violation of the revenue laws, were:

Meyer Klinosky, of Tow send st., Roxbury.

Jacob Klinosky, his brother, same address.

TWO LOADED TRUCKS.

The 200 cases carried on the fists were recovered and as the tide was police and the coast guard began dragging for more. Upward of 500 cases were seized on a truck on the Salem road by Lieut. Thomas Reed and Patrolman Maurice Lewis truck, police said, was registered to Frank Ciavavaio of Charles st., Boston.

Another truck on which were loaded cases was found abandoned in the woods off the beach and the remainder of the cases were picked up on the beach awaiting transport when police emerged from their hiding places.

The empty truck and the touring car were abandoned on the edge of the beach as the smugglers fled.

The seizure was a coup planned by Police Chief George Chapman of Marblehead following yesterday's discovery of the cached liquor which was left untouched but guarded by a hidden patrolman when evidence that another landing was to be made was noted.

Lieut. Reed and Patrolman Kelley, detailed to the guard last night while Lynn and Salem officers patched all the roads, were hidden in woods on the estate of Alexander Little, Lynn shoe manufacturer.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning the waiting officers prepared for a landing. Cars began to arrive on the beach and soon a loop, running without lights, dire

The police waited until the cargo had been landed from the boat and then rushed the men on the beach.

OFFICER IN HOSPITAL.

Patrolman Kelley, who is 50 and has been a member of the Marblehead force for 18 years, was rushed to Mary Alley Hospital following the gas attack. His condition is not serious.

The gas affected his eyesight and its eyes remained bandaged through the day, but he told his comrades he could identify the smuggler who fired the gas cartridge at him.

A detail of Marblehead officers held in reserve at the station was rushed to the scene and arrested the men on the beach. Salem police arrested six and Lynn police three. Patrolmen John F. O'Hara and Patrick J. Flynn of Salem were in watch near the normal school and Patrolman J. N. Pelletier of Salem was stationed near the lead mills on the Marblehead road.

Patrolman John Bates, brother of the Salem mayor, had a station near Pelletiers'. All made arrests.

Patrolman Ray Carter of Lynn arrested three men fleeing in a taxicab.

SEVERAL ESCAPE.

Custom men, notified of the seizure, went to Marblehead, and Inspector Leon Varnum took charge. He estimated the liquor's value at $150,000 and said it had undoubtedly been brought in from a Nova Sco-

Curley and Woods Discuss Jobless Aid With Hoover

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—A call to action and duty to co-operate in the alleviation of suffering among unemployed this winter was sounded today by Col. Arthur Woods, President Hoover's relief director, after a conference at the White House.

Another White House visitor was Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, who said, after a conference with the president, Massachusetts had set up a group of presidents of the State's educational institutions and economic professors to study unemployment, and they had recommended a Federal economic board to work out a long time program looking to the elimination or mitigation of economic depression.

Mayor Curley said in his opinion the Federal government could greatly assist the country by formulating a permanent instead of temporary program to provide en-tin rum runner lying outside.

Despite the guarding of all roads, Lieut. Sweet expressed the opinion that perhaps a dozen men eluded police by hiding in the woods or in the buildings of estates in the neighborhood.

The arrest of Capt. Flynn caused a sensation in Salem, where he has always been a prominent citizen in question. He is about 40 years of age and has been a member of the fire department for 15 years. In April of last year he married Mavle Bergeron, a Salem girl. They have no child.

Shots Halt Suspect Fleeing Big Still Raid

Leominster, Oct. 23 (AP)—A squad of police raided the old Burrage farmhouse on Burrage rd. today, seized 10,000 gallons of liquor equipment and stock, and captured three men. One of the two was chased half a mile under gun fire by Patrolman Francis W. Farwell.

The men gave their names as Matteo Latino, 33; Joseph DeRusi, 29; and Dominic Palladino, 28, all of Worcester. Two 1,500-gallon stills, and one smaller still were found. The officers also seized 48 barrels of mash, five 100-gallon hogshead of beer in brew, 8000 gallons of beer ready for market, and 700 gallons of alcohol in a tank.

The police say the trio were armed. They also say they seized in the house four revolvers, a shotgun and a rifle.

"Enforcer's Work Is None of Public's Business"

The following interview was obtained by the Boston Evening American from Rev. Jonathan S. Lewis, New England prohibition administrator, on the liquor seizure at Marblehead today:

Reporter: What can you tell us about the Marblehead seizure, Mr. Lewis?

Lewis: I'm not interested.

Reporter: But surely you have a statement.

Lewis: We've heard nothing about it except from the newspapers.

Reporter: What are you going to do about it?

Lewis: I'm not telling.

Reporter—Don't you think the public should know?

Lewis—The public has no right to be interested.

Reporter—The reporters have been assigned to get your views.

Lewis—Reporters ought to be in the tombs instead of in press rooms.

Reporter—Where should the prohibition administrator be, in the tombs or on the job?

Lewis—I'm not telling what I'm doing or going to do.

Reporter—We're trying to find out for the public what you ought to do.

JEWEL THIEVES GET $125,000

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Daring thieves who invaded the downtown "diamond market" today snatched platinum and unset diamonds valued at $125,000 from the safe of the jewelry firm of Segman & Abrahams at 102 Fulton st., just as William Segman opened the vaults for the day.

Segman told police he was alone in his office and had just opened the safe when he felt the muzzle of a revolver against his neck.

His captor bound him to a radiator. Segman said he did not even know how many robbers there were.

Prohibition Foundation, With Backing of Big Men, Announces Plans

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP)—A nation-wide program of education in behalf of prohibition was announced today by the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation. Charles R. Jones, chairman, said a budget of $10,000,000 would be raised for newspaper and other advertising.

"More than 130 years of tireless education preceded the adoption of the Eighteenth amendment," Jones said, "but with the ratification of the amendment by 46 of the 48 states, practically all educational effort ceased.

"People forget quickly. During these past ten years following the advent of prohibition, something like 12 or 13 million young voters have come of age who were children when the amendment was enacted. This younger generation has been given very little serious instruction in the meaning and possibilities of the Eighteenth Amendment."

The Foundation lists as members of its advisory board nationally known men from all sections of the country, including James C. Penney, chain store executive; S. S. McClure, magazine publisher; Luke W. Taber, master of the National Grange; Dr. William Lowe Bryan, president of Indiana University; Dr. Charles C. Seleeman, president of Southern Methodist University, and Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of McCormick Seminary.

MOTHER ADMITS KILLING CHILD

Denver, Colo., Oct. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin admitted today she alone was to blame for the death of her 18-year-old stepdaughter, Leona, whose battered body was thrown into Berkeley Lake a week ago Tuesday night.

Her husband, Leo O'Loughlin, is a Denver police detective.

Captain of Detectives Bert Clark announced that he had obtained the admission from Mrs. O'Loughlin after six and a half hours of questioning. The woman's nerve broke and she was carried to her cell in the central section of the city jail on the verge of a complete breakdown.

Beyond the bare announcement that Mrs. O'Loughlin had "talked" Captain Clark declined to comment.

flying field. A mooring mast for dirigibles would be erected and a mile-long runway for planes made possible.

$18,000,000 WORK

The mayor told the President if governmental red tape could be cut, and the city allowed to go forward with its proposed construction, it would involve expenditure of approximately $18,000,000. Five hundred men would be employed the first of December, the mayor said, an additional 500 in January and still another 500 about May 1. The work would take about two years.

The city formerly controlled the island under an act of Congress passed in 1922, but the island was taken back by the government during the World War. Mayor Curley contended congressional action was not necessary since the 1922 act had never been repealed.

He was accompanied by William P. Long, chairman of the Boston Park commission, and Thomas Johnson of Boston.

Airminded Bostonians and business men today lauded the acquisition of Governor's Island for the city airport by Mayor Curley on his visit to President Hoover and the Secretary of War. Speaking for the Chamber of Commerce, Secretary M. D. Liming of that body said:

"We are especially pleased in view of the fact that the aviation bureau of the Chamber of Commerce was one of the first sponsors of the idea."

Albert L. Edson, airport superintendent, said:

"The decision will provide another airport for miscellaneous flying such as student instruction and will keep the transport and regular commercial work separated, greatly facilitating both."

Robert L. O'Brien, state supervisor of aviation, said:

"We need the Governors Island site. The airport has outgrown itself so rapidly and will continue to do so in the future that the acquisition of Governors Island is a step in the right direction."

Lieut. R. L. Brookings, acting commanding officer of the army air detachment at the airport stated:

"That it will be a vast improvement goes without saying. The increased safety factor of an airport more than a mile long will permit pilots to land their planes when they have motor trouble."

Hoover Sees '2 Mayors'

Washington, Oct. 23 (INS)—President Hoover received two mayors of Boston today.

James M. Curley, the elected city head, who called at the White House to urge the executive to cut red tape and enable Boston to build its airport extension on Governors Island, was accompanied by Thomas J. A. Johnson. Asked who Johnson was, Curley said:

"The social mayor of Boston. I get the pay and he gets the applause."

Mayor Curley's daughter, Mary, and William P. Long, chairman of the Boston park commission, also were in the party.

DUNHAM TAKES STAND IN HIS OWN DEFENSE

Domestic Trouble Blamed for Difficulties of Page & Shaw

Otis Emerson Dunham, president of Page & Shaw, Inc., testifying in his own defense in Superior court at East Cambridge today, said that his domestic difficulties with his first wife had much to do with a blight that struck the business of the famous candy company four years ago.

This led eventually to the issuance of new stock and to his present appearance in court, where he is on trial with 12 others, charged with conspiracy in connection with the sale of $2,000,000 worth of the stock.

Dunham's second wife was sworn in as a witness and will testify for him. His first marriage ended in divorce.

"Due to domestic difficulties between 1925 and 1927 I had to stop making my supervisory rounds of all our branches," testified Dunham.

"Extraordinary irregularities then began to appear at the different branches, shortages and so on, which accounted for losses. Before that I had been in very close touch with everything."

Prior to Dunham's testimony, Judge Harold D. Williams informed the jury he would direct a verdict of not guilty on one of the charges against Raymond Holland, a former vice-president of the concern.

DUNHAM'S DEFENSE

This charge named Holland as an alleged accessory, before the fact to larceny. Counsel for two other defendants, Isaac Hart and Joseph Pollay, brokers, who handled the stock issue, said they would present no defense on a similar charge.

Atty. Frederick J. Katzman outlined Dunham's defense, saying:

"Mr. Dunham came into the company in 1918 and for the next seven years the net profits averaged $300,000 a year. Dividends averaged 16 per cent. in cash plus 10 per cent. in stock, annually.

"The business began falling off in 1925, due in great part to litigation with the government over old income taxes, which took his attention away from the business, and domestic difficulties which had to do with a divorce from his first wife.

"Nevertheless in July, 1926, a certain banking firm made an offer of $300,000 for the good name and fame of Page & Shaw.

NEEDED MONEY

"The company needed money and Mr. Dunham thought of a stock issue. Hart and Pollay told him it would be better if they handled it than if he went to the banks. They told him a 50 per cent split-up would be fair.

"At no time did Mr. Dunham have any knowledge that the salesmen were misrepresenting things to the purchasers of the stock, and he had no intention that they should do so. He brought Holland into the company in 1925, and when he found he wasn't doing his job he forced him out.

"Mr. Dunham explained everything fully to the Attorney-General, the Better Business Bureau and other authorities. He still believes the company has an excellent financial future, although his work has been halted by this unfair prosecution."

Dunham then stepped to the witness stand and testified that he lived in Beverly and practiced law from 1898 until 1916 when he did some title work for a friend of Charles Shaw, the founder of the company.

"Later on I bought 40,000 shares of preferred stock in Page & Shaw and became managing director," testified Dunham. "Mr. Shaw was gradually giving up his business and in the fall of 1917 he asked me to buy a controlling interest. I finally took the company over for $500,000 in 1918."

GOVERNOR URGES ALL TO AID AMERICAN FIND WORK FOR JOBLESS

BENEFITS OF PLAN LAUDED BY ALLEN

Every Industry and Individual Should Co-operate, Chief Executive Says

Gov. Frank G. Allen today asked "every individual, every industry" to co-operate in the campaign of the Boston Evening American for odd jobs for the unemployed.

Secretary Melville D. Liming of the Chamber of Commerce urged support of the plan, and Executive Secretary James J. McGuinness of the Allied Theaters of Massachusetts said the directors of that organization will be asked to work out some method of co-operation.

GOVERNOR IN PLEA

"If every individual, every industry, every public and private agency will co-operate in this campaign, it will aid tremendously in improving and stabilizing the present economic situation," said Gov. Allen.

Secretary Liming said:

"The 'odd job' plan of the Boston Evening American should meet with the wholehearted approval of everyone.

"A day's work or an odd job that would give the head of a family a few hours' work may mean the difference between an empty table and the sustenance that keeps the family together without the aid of charity."

The Allied Theaters of Massachusetts is an association of managers of more than 200 of the most important theaters. Telling of a luncheon of the organization on Tuesday at the Hotel Bradford, Executive Secretary McGuinness said:

"I suggested that the theaters take especial interest in the unemployment situation and see if they could not work out some kind of a contest in which each theater would take part and bring out the thoughts of their patrons as to what would be the best way to secure work for some of the needy unemployed.

IT CREATES A JOB

"My thought was offering a small prize to the patron who would make the best suggestion, realizing that there are many odd jobs in the different towns which may be overlooked by city officials, merchants, home owners and many others, who might add if the thought was brought forcibly home to them.

"In my own home I am having a room fixed over, for which there is no immediate need, but thinking I could assist a little in giving a few men work, I am having it done now. True, it is a small job, but it will give a week's work to a few men.

"I feel there are many others who have similar work in their homes, which they must have done eventually, and if they have the same feeling of co-operation that I have, they would have it done at the present time, instead of waiting.

"I am going to call a meeting of the directors of our organization immediately to see if we cannot work out some plans along these lines."

'Baering' Down On the News

WITH

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Vice-President Curtis sneaked in a speech on the administration. It wasn't exactly a speech. No microphone goes along with that job.

It was a telegram. To the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Curtis advised everybody to make cash purchases. We hope he didn't spoil it all by sending that telegram collect.

By spending cash you can increase your credit. That will bring back nation-wide confidence. Then we have that we can start throwing the harpoon into each other again.

Mr. Coolidge didn't say anything about the telegram. He's too busy helping us columnists run the country.

We all agree with Mr. Curtis that you could pay cash. We are opposed to instalments.

Instalments are no good. We have been dropping nickels into telephones and spanking pianos for 30 years and we don't own one of the blamed things yet.

Let's all dig in and get off that slow boat to Egypt. The answer to the situation is cash. And the way to get that is on credit.

CAMPBELL NOT IDENTIFIED

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Two witnesses in the Mary Baker murder trial testified today that Herbert M. Campbell, charged with the killing, "resembled" the man they saw struggling with a girl in an automobile near 16th and B sts., this city, on April 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Wood, the witnesses, however, said they could not positively identify Campbell.

Wood, a bookbinder at the Congressional Library, and his wife, said their attention was attracted to the car by a commotion and they saw what seemed to be a tense struggle. Mrs. Wood said she saw the woman's body sway several times and the man also swayed as he apparently struck the woman several times.

Campbell apparently unperturbed, stood up when Mrs. Wood was asked to look at him. She said he was the "general type" of the man seen in the car.

Waltham, as well as from all parts of the city of Boston.

The Malden application was for a woman to do cleaning at 60 cents an hour.

One man who applied for work appeared to have filled an important role in the business world.

"What kind of work do you do?" he was asked.

"I am a certified public accountant," he said.

Another was a Technology graduate, and another was a product of the military academy at West Point.

But like the rank and file of those hopefuls who crowded the employment office these men of excellent education were willing to do any work for the few dollars it would bring.

Their presence threw a high light on the plight of the needy—showed the value of a little work, an odd job here and there, a few dollars of remuneration in this time of stress.

Only once did Director Shields, who guaranteed to supply a qualified man or woman for any type of job, find himself "stumped." This was when a violin teacher asked for a man to solicit pupils.

"The ball has started rolling," said Shields. "The people of Greater Boston must keep it going.

"I would like to say to business men now and in the coming months, when business improves, to get their employes through this bureau because those looking for work are in no position to give a week's pay in order to secure a job.

"With the people of this great community showing such wonderful spirit in their response to a practical appeal for practical aid, it is time for business concerns with money to do their bit, refrain from discharging employes, give employment to men qualified to do whatever kind of work the job calls for."

Director Shields added that the bureau can supply all kinds of trained workers, both men and women—accountants, bookkeepers, bookkeeping machine operators, comptometer operators, addressograph operators, switchboard girls, stenographers, secretaries, typists, billers, cashiers, dictaphone operators, salesgirls, compositors, elevator operators, factory help of all kinds with experience, and hotel, restaurant and hospital help.

Even Detectives Find Times Are Hard

Two Men Get Jobs, but Learn They Can't Mix With Policemen

Pittsburgh, Oct. 23 (A.P.)—It did strike Earl Guffey and Ralph Moore funny that with all this unemployment talk the city was having such a hard time getting detectives, but today it wasn't funny.

A fellow with a badge and a sad face ate in the restaurant where Ralph and Earl worked. He said he was sad because he couldn't get any help for "the force." Earl and Ralph never did think much of the restaurant business so when he offered to get them detective jobs "free" they jumped at the chance.

When the "detective" mentioned the high cost of badges, black jacks, etc., each handed over $2.75. Then they quit work and the "detective" took them out and put them on their "beat."

They ambled around. Late yesterday they were resting in the northside park. A policeman came along. Earl and Ralph smiled fraternally.

"Pretty quiet ain't it? Yeh, its pretty quiet on our beat too," they chirped.

RAIL MEN CALL ON GOVERNORS

O. P. Van Sweringen, Cleveland railroad magnate, and James J. Burnett, of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, visited Boston today and held a private conference with the New England Governors' Railroad Commission. They discussed problems relative to railroad transportation in this section which the commission is attempting to solve.

Both Van Sweringen and Burnett took the same position as that advanced at the public hearings of railroad executives held in the State House, last March.

At that hearing the representatives of the Chesapeake & Ohio said they wanted an equality of opportunity for all trunk line systems in the eastern territory, citing that the Pennsylvania had affiliated holdings in both the New Haven and Boston & Maine.

MINE DEAD MAY REACH 263

Aladorf, Germany, Oct. 23 (AP)—Rescue squads penetrated the most remote galleries of the Anna mine today in search of 25 persons unaccounted for after the explosion which Tuesday wrecked the shaft, taking at least 238 lives. It was believed certain that the 25 missing persons would be found dead and their number added to the total casualties.

Officials of the mine are still mystified as to the cause of the explosion. They claim dynamite recently sent to the shaft was stored in its proper places Saturday and could not have been the cause of the blast. Coal damp, it was believed, possibly offered an explanation.

Berenger Warns of U.S. War Debt Rumor

Paris, Oct. 23 (AP)—Henri Berenger, negotiator for the Franco-American debt settlement, today warned Frenchmen to give no credence to reports that the United States would grant a moratorium on the war debts.

In an article written for the provincial press, Senator Berenger says such reports betray ignorance of conditions in America and of the American attitude. France, he emphasizes, has no need for revision of the debts.

Legion Damage to Hotels Is Placed Under $500

Property damage in the 25 leading hotels of Boston during the American Legion convention amounted to less than $500.

That official statement was made today by the City of Boston Hotel Association acting as a result of rumors the 50,000 legionnaires housed and fed in the hostelries did enormous damage.

Representatives of the various hotels made written and verbal reports to President Arthur L. Race, managing director of the Copley-Plaza, as a result of defamatory rumors.

It was found that of thousands of checks totalling several hundred thousands of dollars which the hotel managements cashed for the Legionaires, only six, amounting to less than $300, were returned, and in each case amicable adjustment has been or will be made.

The hotel men gave the Legionnaires an absolutely "clean bill of health," all monies paid, and declared the conduct of the delegates such they will recommend any city in the country inviting the convention.

Lermond C. Prior, operator of the Lenox, Brunswick and Bradford, said not five cents worth of damage was reported at either of the three hotels. He said:

"We are, on the other hand, grateful for the splendid increase in business the conventions brought us and I would welcome another next week."

FEDERALS JOIN BRAZIL REBELS

Curityba, Parana, Brazil, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Brazilian revolutionary command was informed today that the 19th battalion of chasseurs stationed at Timbo, State of Bahia, had revolted and joined the insurgent movement.

Timbo is a railroad center about 100 miles away from Bahia and third largest city of Brazil, and the insurgent advices claimed the federal defection opened up the way for their advance into Bahia over the railroad line.

Rebel troops claimed yesterday to have repelled a strong federal attempt to destroy Bengos bridge, across the river Taguary, just south of Itarare. The effect would be to cut the line of communication of the insurgent vanguard which has advanced into Sao Paulo, and strand it north of the river without means of getting supplies.

The two posed as hitch-hikers, according to police. They were joined by a third in a roadster just before they entered Providence, when the victims stopped at their request.

Leroy A. Lewis gave up $32 and Herbert Dawley surrendered a watch and $8.

The accomplice in the roadster demanded the license of Dawley, he said, and his refusal brought a pummelling.

DRAPER JOINS IN ANTI-DRY LAW RALLY

Political circles were buzzing with conjecture today over the significance of the appearance of Ehen S. Draper, defeated G. O. P. wet senatorial primary candidate, on the platform at the big anti-prohibition rally last night in Symphony Hall.

It was Draper's first public appearance since the primary and he was given a flattering reception by the audience of approximately 2000 people.

GLAD TO AID CAUSE

When asked if he cared to comment on his presence, the Hopedale man said:

"I was very glad to be on the platform because I am a strong believer in the worthy cause they advocated here."

Among the platform guests also was Marcus A. Coolidge, the Democratic senatorial candidate. Apparently few recognized him, as his entrance occasioned hardly a ripple of applause.

The speakers at the rally, which was conducted under the auspices of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, were former Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York, Mrs. Carroll Miller of Pennsylvania, President James T. Moriarty of the State Federation of Labor and William Phillips, ex-U. S. minister to Canada.

President Moriarty, a teetotaler, contended that while the American Federation of Labor adopted a resolution calling for a modification of the Volstead Act to permit the sale of 2.75 per cent beer, he doubted if the action represented the opinion of the 500 odd delegates to the convention.

FOR OUTRIGHT REPEAL

"And I know that it does not reflect the opinion of organized labor in Massachusetts, which is overwhelmingly in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment," he declared.

Mrs. Miller ridiculed the liquor law and contended it was fitting that in Boston, where revolt started against Old World tyranny, "we should meet tonight to protest against a far worse form of tyranny than those early Bostonians suffered when they threw a ship load of tea into the depths of the harbor."

Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle issued a public appeal to all art or antique dealers in the State who have been victimized to aid the government in prosecution.

The number of New England art or antique dealers who escaped being victimized is comparatively small and many passed on to patrons at fancy prices the manufactured "antique china" and the "original" portraits by old masters which have defied recognized experts.

Another Boston collector, it was disclosed, paid a high price for bogus china similar to that foisted on Nash.

The Anderson Art Galleries, of New York, were victimized to the extent of $10,000 by purchase of a china ship set worth less than $500.

Museums, art galleries, wealthy private collectors and dealers looked alike to the art swindlers, 14 of whom have been indicted by the Suffolk County grand jury.

Listed among the experts duped are Edwin S. Webster, trustee of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, who paid $32,500 for a Stuart portrait of Washington only to discover it was a copy; F. C. Tuttle Daughter, 13, Knows Her Executive Mansions

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Jasmine, 13-year-old daughter of Charles H. Tuttle, Republican candidate for governor of New York, has let it be known she has been inspecting executive mansions—not only that in Albany but also the one in Washington.

The visit to the White House was three years ago when Calvin Coolidge was President and Jasmine was only 10. She and her brother Bob, then 13, slipped away at 6 a. m., while their parents still were asleep and arrived on the White House porch in the midst of a heavy rain storm.

The doorman informed them the President did not receive at so early an hour, so they waited.

Several hours passed and then Mr. Coolidge came out. There was an exchange of hellos and the President smiled, waved his hand, stepped into an automobile and sped away.

"And that," said Jasmine, "was the end of our conference. Really it wasn't worth it."

ROBBER SLAIN BY POLICEMAN

Bristol, Ct., Oct. 23—Edmund R. Theriault was shot and killed, by a policeman here today while engaged in a drug store holdup.

The youth, his head covered by a black hood with two slits for his eyes, was shot by Patrolman Edward O'Connor as he fled from the store after demanding and receiving from John F. Rock the contents of the cash register, which included $17 in cash and two checks for small amounts.

Theriault's automatic jammed after he had fired two shots at the patrolman. O'Connor was in the store chatting with Rock when the robber entered. Theriault covered both men with his automatic and ordered Rock to open the register. While Rock was complying with the order, the patrolman remarked to the bandit:

"You know there's another cop outside?"

Theriault replied:

"I don't care if there is. He'll get it, too."

As the youth began backing toward the door, O'Connor ducked behind a show case and the duel began.

'X' Means Woman-Power in Illinois

Classed as Generally Unfit, They Now Plan to Get Their Rights

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP)—The feminine Paul Reveres of 1930 are riding through every Illinois village and farm to spread the gospel of another "woman's right."

On election day the voters, men and women alike, will scratch the hundreds of thousands of little "X" marks that will grant or withhold from Illinois women equal rights with men in the jury box.

Twenty-one other states already sanction jury service for women. And even if Illinois votes 1 s the affirmative the home state of Lincoln, the Emancipator, will be just 4,130 years late in putting the first woman on a jury; for history recites that feminine jurors date back to the Babylonia of 2200 B. C.

At the present, by virtue of a supreme court decision, women in Illinois are classed with aliens, convicts and the mentally and morally unfit.

HOBO POET ASKS 2ND DIVORCE

Provincetown, Oct. 23—Harry Kemp, the hobo poet, who lives here with his wife's pet cat, Hamlet, will seek a divorce in probate court at Barnstable next Tuesday, alleging desertion.

A little more than three years ago, Kemp, the author of "Tramping on Life," announced the start of a search for his third auburn-haired wife.

What his luck has been, nobody knows, and Kemp won't tell. He still lives quietly with Hamlet, preaching a religion of a spiritual kingdom built on sun-browned health, while his second wife, Frances McClernan Kemp, travels abroad and occasionally threatens to get a divorce in Paris.

One of the most glittering members of the art colony here this summer, Kemp stays on in winter, living in a small shack on one of the bleakest stretches of sand on the Atlantic coast, known as Peaked Hill bars.

His first wife was Mary Pyne, the actress. After their divorce he wed Francis McClernan, a Bronxville girl, in Greenwich Village.

CANCER CLINIC OFFERED L. I. ESTATE

New York, Oct. 23 (US)—Mrs. Grace I. Conners, young widow of W. J. Conners, Sr., of Buffalo, former noted New York political leader, has offered her sumptuous mansion, known as the "Monastery," and her 15-acre estate at Huntington, L. I., to Doctors Walter R. Coffey and John D. Humber, San Francisco cancer research workers, for the establishment of an anti-cancer research institute.

Drs. Coffey and Humber are in this city on a brief visit.

FUNDS NEEDED

"We can not but accept the opportunity you give us to continue this work of science," the physicians told Mrs. Conners. "But any acceptance on our part of your munificent offer must be provisional.

"It would be further necessary to have adequate funds to carry on the costly experiment. Apart from the relatively large sums necessary to maintain a free clinic where treatments with our extract of the cortex of the suprarenal will be given to rich and poor alike, without any charge, we would have a competent staff of noted biochemists to do the strictly laboratory researches to test our theories about the cause and possible treatment of various types of cancer.

"Another condition is that we succeed in obtaining the collaboration of eminent biochemists and clinical scientists, who are in New York and nearby places. The main inducement in our having an institute of this character here is, that in this neighborhood are some of the foremost scientists, some of whom are working on lines similar to our own."

Mrs. Conners assured Drs. Coffey and Humber that she would exert all her influence to obtain the necessary funds for such an undertaking.

LABORATORIES NEARBY

The situation of her "Monastery," overlooking Huntington bay, is indescribably beautiful, aristocratic and quiet. The palatial mansion, with six floors, and some 40 sumptuously furnished rooms, decorated with rare objects of art culled from Europe, is estimated to be worth more than $500,000. The 15 acres of land around it would be most useful for various types of clinical and laboratory operations.

Within two miles or so, there is the Cold Spring Harbor Carnegie Institute laboratory of biological research, and another biological laboratory, directed by Dr. Harris, where extract from the cortex of the suprarenal gland also has been prepared.

Drs. Coffey and Humber give an extract of the suprarenal cortical substance to cancer patients in their world famous clinics in San Francisco and Los Angeles. If the Conners' offer is sustained by the establishment of a fund to support the work effectively, the Long Island institute of Coffey and Humber would be the largest cancer clinic in the world.

"You have laid the firmest of foundations for success in using the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of Lucky Strike"

Says

CLEMENT O. MINIGER

Noted industrial leader and philanthropist.
President Electric Auto-lite Company.
Director Willys-Overland Company.

"The demand of Americans for the utmost in comfort, convenience and safety has made the Electric Auto-lite standard equipment in many of the finest of American automobiles. In using the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos you have laid the firmest of foundations for the success of your product. Because you are rendering Americans a service which they appreciate most—the benefit of modern science."

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. Clement O. Miniger to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The statement of Mr. Miniger appears on this page.

© 1930, The American Tobacco Co., Mfrs.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

PRICE WAR ON AT MUNICIPAL AIRPORT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Efforts to bring the art of learning to fly down to the pocketbooks of the working man are being made at Boston Municipal Airport. Competition between Curtiss-Wright Flying Service and Skyways, Inc., amounts almost to a price war. The former company is offering a private pilot's course at almost half price, and the latter is offering flying time to license holders at one-third off the list prices.

The "war" started when Curtiss-Wright offered a private pilot's course in flying, including 10 hours' dual instruction and 10 hours' solo flying at $260, or $240 less than the regular price. This price does not include ground school or any of the incidentals that the ordinary course includes.

A sliding scale of prices was arranged by Skyways, it reading their planes to private pilots for $25 an hour. After 10 hours the price is $20, and after 20 hours, $2.50 less.

Public response to the plans has been instantaneous, and the planes of both companies are being flown almost continuously.

Half owner in a Curtiss-Robin, Jack Smith, Boston market man, is rapidly closing the gap between his present 40 hours' solo and the limited commercial pilot's license, earned with 50 hours of solo flying. His partner, Dr. Bob Blackler, Winchester dentist, is receiving instruction on landing the Robin from Bill Tanner of Curtiss-Wright. In a very short time Blackler will join the ranks of the solo students.

Flying tests of the seaplane glider, built by the Marine Glider Corp. of Gloucester, scheduled for yesterday, will be made today, according to Dana Jefferson, president. The leasing of a speedboat is the only drawback to the test flying of the craft which is parked on the Curtiss seaplane float off the southern bulkhead.

Benjamin Broome, former chief mechanic of Round Airways of New Bedford, demonstrated his new tie down cables for airplanes yesterday.

Is Your Daughter Well and Strong?

There are three trying periods in a woman's life, when the girl matures to womanhood; when a woman gives birth to her first child; when a woman reaches middle age. At these times Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps to restore normal health and vigor. Thousands testify to its worth.

Daughter of Mrs. F. Butcher, R. No. 2, Gridley, Kansas

"My thirteen year old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help her because I used to take it myself at her age. Now she does not have to stay home from school, and her color is good, she eats well and does not complain of being tired."—Mrs. Floyd Butcher.

Daughter of Mrs. J. Bartholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her, off and on. Then a friend told us about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls. I really think the Compound helped her more than all the other medicine I gave her."—Mrs. J. Bartholdi.

Daughter of Mrs. M. Milano, 1408 Park Ave., New York, New York

"My seventeen year old daughter Fannie was rundown, weak and nervous. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound she has gained in weight and strength. She eats and sleeps well. She is a packer and she is able to go to work every day. We recommend the medicine to other mothers and daughters."—Mrs. M. Milano.

What Boxers Think Of Before Fight
Ducks Call Risko
B'ars Coax Dorval
How Jack Bagged Famous Old Mose

Terror of Alleghenies Now Parlor Rug

What does a boxer think of, talk of, on the eve of an encounter? It depends on many things, his temperament, inclinations, condition, associations, environment, time of year, etc. The end of a long, hard siege of training sometimes finds an athlete cross, surly, nervous, irritable. Generally the nervousness and irritableness come two or three days before the contest and pass off when the training ends. The training grind is more wearing on the average athlete than the contest itself. The end brings a relief the boxer shows in exuberance and good spirits.

Leave the boxers to themselves and what do they think of, talk of? Boxers are only human, the same as you and I. They respond to the same urges as you and I. This is the time of the year when the leaves turn, the frost whitens the ground mornings, the haze veils the hills, the tang gets in the air and the Red Gods call.

George Underwood

Age old impulses stir within you. The primal that is in every man is aroused. To the young male, especially, do the Red Gods call, long, enticing, unresisting. This is the time of the year when any young male who ever has had a gun in his hands, smelt wood smoke, felt the soft forest floor underfoot—

"Heard the whispering of the pine-trees,
Heard the lapping of the waters,
Sounds of music, words of wonder.
Saw the moon rise from the water,
Rippling, rounding from the water,
Saw the flocks and shadows on it"—

heard the owl hoot, the partridge whirr, the deer whistle, the time of the year when any young male who ever has had a gun in his hands wants to go hunting.

RED GODS CALL

And so, wasn't it natural when Johnny Risko, who meets Dick Daniels in the Boston Garden tonight, and Jack Dorval, who takes on Knute Hansen, sat down over the coffee with us, last night, that talk should turn to hunting? To sturdy, healthy, red-blooded young animals like Risko and Dorval, the Red Gods call especially strong.

"Gee, when I get this fight over with," began Risko, "I want to go out to Rainy Lake after duck. Four of us bagged 114 in the first day's shooting, last year. Brought back enough to feed half the people in St. Paul. You know the ducks out there taste a lot better than the ones along the seacoast. Minnesota ducks get plenty to eat. There are acres and acres of rice paddies and the black heads get fat and sweet on wild rice. They haven't the strong, fishy taste of the Cape Cod ducks.

We were off. One hunting yarn followed another. The best of 'em were told by Dorval, a woodsman, born and bred. Except when he comes to town to fight Dorval spends all of his time in the woods. He has a farm in the wildest part of the Alleghenies and a cabin which you have to pack 14 miles further in to reach.

Last year we were fortunate enough to be able to take a hunting trip with Dorval, Commander Klein of the Shenandoah, Dr. Wilfred G. Fralick, the famous New York surgeon who numbers Dempsey, Tunney, Sharkey, Stribling, Greb, Dundee and many other fighters among his patients, and Mike Jacobs, the broker. We went for bear but the best we could get in a short two-day stay was two bucks.

Shortly after our return word came to us that Dorval had killed Old Mose. That was a bear famous all over the Alleghenies who had been hunted and shot at by woodsmen and famous hunters, unsuccessfully for years. Natives declared Old Mose held a charmed life.

Listen how Dorval killed Old Mose as Jack himself told it over the coffee to Johnny Risko and I, last night.

"Luck, luck more than anything else," modestly began Dorval. "Wasn't gunning for b'ar. Went out after deer and happened to stir him up and got him—that's all.

"First fall of snow of the season. Great tracking. Deer were especially thick, as you know George, and six of us went out at daylight for 'em. I knew all the runaways and after stationing the rest of the fellers on the watches I went back to start the drive.

STIRS UP OL' MOSE

"I headed down a swale and into some particularly thick bush, scrubpine and blackberry briars. I was making all the noise I could to scare the deer up. Suddenly there was a crashing in the bushes about 40 feet away. By the noise and the swaying of the bushes and saplings I knew it wasn't a deer, but a bear and a whale of a big one. The bush was so thick I couldn't get sight of him.

"I backtracked and swung around to the left and there I spotted Old Mose's tracks. Twice as big as any other bear track I ever saw. Had a gap where two of his toes had been taken off in a trap in his cub days. Ten feet away I saw the hole and the pile of leaves under a big fallen pine where he had bedded."

Dorval then recited of a five-mile chase in which he had guessed rightly what direction Old Mose would head, once getting at a runaway after Old Mose had passed and again scoring him away by getting down wind and letting Old Mose scent him. Twice he glimpsed him on the side hill, again as he crossed Hunts Run and still again in a burn on the other side, but never more than a glimpse.

"I figured he was heading for the cliffs on Pine Knoll and cut across to head him off," continued Dorval. "I got down there to a draw I figured he would come through and in a position where the wind was coming from him to me. Waited and waited. No b'ar. Had about given up when I started to scan the hillside to one side.

"I saw a big black blurr pass between two groups of hard woods and enter some pines. I looked for an opening in the pines and sighted. Suddenly Old Mose's great head and giant shoulders showed through. He was as big as an ox. Couldn't miss him. Pumped three .300's into head and forshoulder. That's all."

Old Mose weighed close to 600 pounds before they dressed him. It took six men five hours to get him on a sled and haul him back to camp. Woodsmen say it was the biggest bear shot in the Alleghenies in half a century.

Wonder if Jack Dorval will be as successful in beating Knute Hansen in the Garden ring tonight, as he was in bagging Old Mose, terror of the Alleghenies?

B. U. Harriers Will Meet R. I. State

Boston University's cross-country team will leave for Kingston, Rhode Island, tomorrow to run against Rhode Island State in its second meet of the season.

The Terrier hill and dalers dropped their first meet to Tufts, but with an extra week of training have improved considerably and are expected to make a much better showing.

JACK DORVAL, who brought down Old Mose, long terror of the Alleghenies, and a two day's bag outside of his cabin. Five bucks and a good-sized bear. Not so bad, fellow Nimrods. But what's in those barrels? Um-m-m-m-m. Think of venison broiled over the wood coals and washed down with what those barrels contain. Oh, Boy! Wonder if Dorval will be as successful against Knute Hansen, tonight, as he was against Old Mose?

JOHNNY RISKO and a bag of ducks. A few hours previously they were feeding in the wild rice along Minnesota bottoms. Minnesota black heads, Johnny says, do not taste so fishy and strong as our Cape Cod gunckers. Risko says he will toss so many punches at Dick Daniels, tonight, that Dick will think he is being shot at by a duck hunter with a pump gun.

Gehrig Suffering Multiple Injuries

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Evening World today said that Lou Gehrig slugging first baseman of the New York Yankees, is "ready to go in a hospital now for repairs which should have been made long before the baseball season ended.

There is a broken finger, a dislocated left elbow and several painful cysts in the lobe of the right ear for surgeons to go to work on within the next few days, the World said.

Punts and Fumbles

By BILL GRIMES

Harvard and Dartmouth are devoting much time to the perfecting of defenses for each other's running attack and over head games. Both teams have been thoroughly scouted but with one or two exceptions, neither team has shown anything worth while other than a general idea of their respective offenses.

Should Gay Bromberg, the Big Green's veteran and star guard, who was sent to the Dick Hall House yesterday because of a heavy cold, fail to respond to treatment, it will be a severe blow to the Green.

With Howard Jones and Pop Warner battling on the Coast and the heated controversy between Wisconsin and Purdue threatening war in the Big Ten, football is bound to suffer. That win-at-any-cost never benefitted any sport.

The fans are placing too much importance upon the fact that Dartmouth has scored 225 points in four games. The Big Green has a fine club but he did not require a top notch outfit to compile that many points against the opposition Dartmouth has met.

The Army will be stronger against Yale then it was last Saturday for Harvard. Loren Hillsinger has recovered from the injury which forced him out of the Crimson game and he will be bad news to the Elis. On the offense, Hillsinger is the running guard with an array of important assignments, which he has mastered to the nth degree.

Ralph Glaze, still recognized as the greatest of all time Big Green, although a quarter of a century has ticked away since he played, will witness his first Dartmouth-Harvard game on Saturday. As the "pitcher" was the regular right end for four years, he never saw a Harvard game during his college days and this is the first year he has been East since he graduated.

Whenever any horse play starts in the dressing room of the Harvard coached, all of the boys give Eddie Bradford a wide berth. Eddie's idea of fecling is far too strenuous to be enjoyed by his victims. Ask Eddie Farrell!

Incidentally, that same Eddie Bradford is a miracle man as an end coach. Not only has he a most thorough knowledge of end play, but he possesses that rare faculty of being able to impart his knowledge to his charges.

DILBOY "PURE" SHOW TONIGHT

The Dilboy Post's indoor season of boxing will open tonight in Columbus Hall, Somerville. Competition will be held in the following open classes 126, 135, 147, 160 pounds and heavyweights.

At least seven heavyweights will compete in this show, including Homer Blemus, Jamaica Plain; Jim McLean, Dorchester; Russell Moora, Roxbury; Henry Owens, Cambridge; John Milbury, Somerville, and Don Perry, Newburyport.

Because of the large number of bouts the first bout will go on at 7:45 sharp.

3 Notre Dame Teams Play on Saturday

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 22 (AP)—The Notre Dame football department will operate on a large scale Saturday, playing three games at one place or another.

Mr. Rockne's 58 beat will go to Pittsburgh to meet Pitts' Panther and 22 leases young men will play the Wisconsin '29 eleven at Madison Wis. Twenty others have been nominated for a game with Northwestern's reserves which will be a curtain-raiser to the Northwestern-Centre offering at Evanston, Ill.

Fights Last Night

By the Associated Press.

New York—Maxie Rosenbloom, world light heavyweight champion, stopped Abe Bain, Newark, N. J. (11), title, Bob Olin, Scranton, outpointed Willard Ihl, Jersey Highland, Ansh. (10); Pete Sarazzi, Syracuse, and Joe Scandiffo, New York, drew (10).

Barcelona, Spain—Panama Al Brown, New York, and Jose Girones, Spain, drew (10).

Wichita, Kan.—Mickey Walker, world middleweight champion, knocked out Homer Sheridan, Los Angeles (1), semi-title.

Reno, Nev.—Frankie Murray, New York, outpointed Benny Gallup, San Francisco (10).

Max Rosenbloom an Easy Winner

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—The first experiment with championship fights at "popular" prices in Madison Square Garden has shown that the innovation is far from popular, unless the contenders can show more than Abie Bain.

Bain, a Newark (N.J.) youngster, who has had little experience among the light heavyweights, proved only a chopping block for Maxie Rosenbloom, the light heavyweight champion, last night, and Maxie "defended" his title by scoring a technical knockout in the 11th round of a dull bout.

Even with the prices scaled down to where the best seats cost less than $6, only 4400 of the fight faithful turned out and only netted about $12,000 to the gate. And many of them left the arena before the bout wound to its certain finish.

Braves Sell Rollings to Rochester Club

The Boston Braves announced today the outright sale of Russell "Red" Rollings, infielder, to the Rochester Club of the International League.

Rollings was obtained by the Braves last year by draft from the Hollywood Club of the Pacific Coast League. Rollings formerly played for the Red Sox.

JIM MALONEY, our own Shamus. "Be a good doggie now," says Jim, "and don't mistake any chipmunks for pa'tridges. Flush enough of 'em for me, boy, and I'll not only let you have the bones, tonight, but the wings as well." Maloney and Dan Carroll are planning a hunting trip in Maine late this fall, after a certain big match that is brewing is over.

Risko and Daniels Clash at Garden Tonight

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

The fistic curtain goes up tonight on another ring battle with much at stake for the warriors, and Johnny Risko, Cleveland's rubber man, will attempt to erase Dick Daniels of St. Paul from the ranks of the heavyweight contenders.

For the ex-baker from Cleveland, victory means a match with the again-threatening Jim Maloney of South Boston and Weymouth.

And for Daniels it means that he will be squared away for a lucrative shot at Tuffy Griffith in Chicago or against Griffith or Stribling in New York.

What the outcome of tonight's war in the Boston Garden ring will be is a puzzle to the fans, for while they know Risko, they know nice that Daniels has been doing some smart hand-throwing in his last battles, especially when he outfought Tommy Loughran in a 10-round no-decision session.

Daniels Started as Bantam Three Years Ago

The St. Paul visitor is the ring's curiosity, anyway. Starting out as a bantamweight three years ago, Daniels put on weight until he had grown into the heavyweight class. He now wiggles the needle on the scales anywhere between 185 and 190.

The main feature of the card at the Garden tonight is not the sole attraction, however.

There will be two 10-round preliminaries and two six-rounders, with the semi-final spot taken by Jack Dorval, who knocked out George Cook on the Carners-Maloney card, and Knute Hansen, the devastating Dane.

The other and preceding 10-round session will be between Joe Zelinsky of Winthrop and George Pavlick of Cleveland.

Former Crack Amateur in Six Round Prelim

For the six-round quarrels, Russell Kelcourse of Quincy, former crack amateur, has been matched against George Perry of Revere, and Jack Casper of East Boston will try out the mood of Harold Henderson of New oYrk.

For the benefit or the suburbanites and those from out of town, the Boston & Maine Railroad will take the fans to Boston at excursion rates.

Minor League Prexy Favors Rule Change

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP)—Thomas Jefferson, president of the American Association, today joined President Ernest S. Barnard of the American League in the movement to rid the scoring rules of the sacrifice fly.

"The sacrifice fly unquestionably has no place in the rules and I am in favor of its elimination at once," President Hickey said.

Over-Confidence Is Only Danger to Green Victory

Two of the three "Confidence" triplets, "Over" and "Lack" can never be classified other than liabilities in the sport ledger but the third member, "Self," is always an asset.

Coach Jack Cannell has been on the lookout for signs of over confidence on the part of his Indians of the North. The Big Green has compiled a total of 225 points in four games. Naturally, Dartmouth is somewhat cocky, which is nothing more or less than an advance degree of self confidence, which never hurt any team. But, if the Big Green goes a step further and develops a complex which underrates Harvard they are in for a licking in the Stadium.

Back in 1925, overconfidence came within a couple of blocked kicks of ruining the season for Dartmouth. The Nate Parker team was one of the best that ever represented the Hanover institution. The Big Green ran up high scores on Norwich, Hobart, Vermont, Maine and Harvard, and then went down to play Brown in Providence and came within an ace of getting a beating.

The Big Green thought so well of itself that it was under the impression that all that was necessary to win over Brown was its superiority on the field. It was very lucky to escape defeat and it was the blocking of a punt that turned the tide in favor of Dartmouth. However, the team learned a great lesson that afternoon, staged a comeback and went through Cornell and Chicago to an undefeated untied season and was recognized as the outstanding team of the East.

Two years previous to the Brown near tragedy, Dartmouth got all puffed up over defeating Colby, the Maine state champions, by some 60 odd points. Jess Hawley had re-

BROMBERG IS SUFFERING WITH COLD

By BILL GRIMES

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 23—Dartmouth's chances for a victory over Harvard at the Stadium on Saturday, suffered a severe blow when Gay Bromberg, Dartmouth left guard and probably the strongest man in the Green forward wall, was sent to the college infirmary suffering from a heavy cold which may keep him out of the game.

The giant linesman was one of the strongest spots in the Dartmouth line last season, being mentioned as an all-America player on some elevens. This season he has been considered by some followers of the team as the best man in the Big Green line.

Bill Grimes

Should Bromberg not start against Harvard, the assignment will be given either to Bill Phinney or Jack Pyles, who are the present substitutes. In all probability Phinney will start, since he was given the call at the post when the reserves were sent in against Columbia, Saturday.

Coach Jackson Cannell said that Hal Mackey, injured left end, would probably see some action against Harvard, Saturday, thus brightening somewhat Dartmouth's hopes for the line situation.

Mackey was injured in the early stages of the Bates game, which he started after working his way up from a fifth team position. At the time he ranked first among the group of left ends, having played that position last season on the undefeated 1929 freshman team.

Aarne Frigard, injured right half back, is in uniform again.

Harvard Scouts Drill Crimson on Green Plays

CRICKARD TO START IN BACKFIELD

Harvard preserved the even tenor of its football ways today as Arnold Horween's regulars worked out the defense which is calculated to stop Dartmouth Saturday.

All scrimmaging by the Crimsonshirted grid warriors has been called off in favor of long periods of individual instruction.

With a full roster of Cantab players with which to work, Horween's army of football scouts descended en masse to teach Harvard the fundamentals of Dartmouth's far-famed offense.

The scouts, represented chiefly by Billy Murray, former Harvard football star, employed Jimmy Knox's second varsity squad to impersonate the dreaded Redskins from the hills of Hanover. In an effort to make the seconds look as much like Dartmouth as possible, the Knoxmen are given bright green helmets.

Reports from Dartmouth that the injury list there is growing daily is of no concern to Horween and his henchmen whatsoever. In fact Harvard looks with deep suspicion on the announcements that the Dartmouth team in general is in poor shape.

While no scrimmages are ordered for the Cantabs, daily signal drills give an insight as to what Harvard's probable lineup Saturday will be.

Jack Crickard May Start In Place of Mays

The betting right now is that Jack Crickard, 180 pound battering ram will take Eddie Mays' place in the Harvard lineup against the Green.

Far be it from Horween to confess this. Horween has stated that his entire squad wil lbe available Saturday, and that includes the blithe Mr. Mays, who scales 157 pounds and is the fastest back Harvard has to offer.

But in the daily workouts, it has been noticed that Crickard, then Mays, is the order of the lineups. Crickard got the nod last week against Sasso's Army team, and by covering himself with glory, Crickard made his place on the Harvard A team assured.

Mays, while as well as ever, still has a lot of work to do to get back into form. He has yet to carry the pigskin in a Harvard game this year, while Crickard is in fine form, with three tests behind him.

There will be no question about Ben Tickner's eligibility Saturday. The giant center reported as scheduled to Horween yesterday after resting in Stillman infirmary. Big Ben did not climb into the moleskins, however. He remained in street clothes and watched the effective Murray show Harvard what Dartmouth will do Saturday.

Harvard's line presents the big question mark of the week. Toiling daily until after dark, the Harvard line coaches, Cleary and Dunn, have picked the entire Crimson forward line apart and individually instructed Horween's seven mules.

Vic Harding and Bob Ogden, constituting the best pair in the present Harvard wing corps will be at opposite wings against the Canadiens. Fred Richards has apparently clinched the job at left tackle, while Frank Kales is generally given the nod to start at right tackle in place of Bill Trafford.

Talbot Will See Action for First Time Saturday

"Bus" Talbot, Harvard's hard luck guard, will see action for the first time when he lines up beside Ben Tickner at left guard. On the other side of Tickner, Johnny Trainer—a veteran if there ever was one at Harvard—has unquestionably Horween's choice at right guard.

Tomorrow the Harvard team will taper off with a light workout. The Harvard coaches will have the Cantabs limber up for a short time, and then a final session of skull practice, employing charts, diagrams and chalk galore, will see Harvard ready for the big battle.

As far as could be learned, the Harvard team will stay in its dormitory rooms tomorrow night. The custom of taking Harvard teams to far-away places, where the strangeness of surroundings usually kept them awake all night, has been discarded across the Charles.

CRIMSON'S CRIPPLES RETURN FOR GREEN GAME

EDDIE MAYS

CHARLIE DEVENS.

HAVE LOST those infirmary blues. Eddie Mays, the small, shifty back at Harvard, running with the ball; Charles Devens, halfback, on left, and Bus Talbot, guard, have been declared fit by Dr. Tommy Richards at Harvard. Mays is a big cog in the backfield, while Devens and Talbot will give more strength to the entire team. Harvard will need them against Dartmouth.

GREEN STAR IS OUT WITH COLD

ceived some fine reports concerning Colby and fearing an upset, he steamed the Big Green up in great style before that Colby, even to the extent of confiding with his players that in his opinion Dartmouth was in for a licking.

Colby had nothing and was a "push over," but that victory was a costly one for Hawley. Before the Columbia game, Hawley attempted to pep up his squad, but soon after he started his fight talk it was evident to him that he was not getting across. The players had listened attentively while he stressed upon the strength of Colby, and as Columbia had been beaten repeatedly, they refused to react to Hawley's oratory.

Over-Confidence Has Been Bane of Green Elevens

Dartmouth gave an excellent imitation of a squad of wooden soldiers during the first half of that Columbia game and but for one of the most sensational flying tackles ever seen on any gridiron by Hank Bjorkman, who brought down Walter Koppisch on the 20-yard line after the Columbia star had broken loose and ran almost the length of the field, over confidence would have been responsible for Dartmouth's defeat.

There have been many instances where Dartmouth has been guilty of over-confidence, and lost football games, such as the Cornell game in Ithaca a few years ago, when Eddie Dooley attempted to register as a great forward passer in the last 30 seconds of play and heaved the pigskin into the arms of a Cornellian which cost the Big Green the old ball game.

Therefore, it is not to be wondered at that Jack Cannell has his car to the ground for the first signs of over-confidence this season. It necessitates the drawing of a fine line to keep a team's self-confidence at the proper pitch without developing over-confidence.

Mother of 'Big Train' to Hover His Flock

Coffeyville, Kas., Oct. 23 (INS)—Mrs. F. E. Johnson mother of Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Senators, will leave here soon for Johnson's country home in Maryland to take care of his children made motherless by the recent death of the great pitcher's wife.

Johnson, still crushed by the tragic death of his wife, last week-ten his mother asking her to make her home with him and his children near the capital. Johnson formerly lived here.

Italian Bike Star in N. Y. Six-Day Race

Milan, Italy, Oct. 23 (AP)—Alfredo Binda, Italian champion cyclist, will leave October 28 for New York to take part in the six-day bicycle races. He announced that he is giving up open road racing.

BRUINS BEGIN DRILL MONDAY

With all but three or four of the Boston Bruins present or accounted for, Manager Art Ross plans to hold the first practice session of the season next Monday, regardless of whether Eddie Shore, Dit Clapper, Marty Barry and the others detained by immigration authorities at the border, have arrived in town or not.

It is expected that the ice will be in the Boston Arena by that time, but if it isn't, Ross will take his charges to Providence to work out until the local rink is ready.

He believes that the two weeks he will have to get his squad into shape will be enough to put them in perfect trim for the opening game with the New York Americans at the Boston Garden on November 11, but he doesn't want to wait any longer than next Monday to start work.

Press Ban Lifted in Southern Game

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 23 (AP)—After starting an argument that drew remarks from the Governor, newspaper publishers and a score of sports editors, the committee in charge of today's South Carolina-Clemson football game, rescinded a ban placed on play-by-play news accounts and broadcasting of the annual contest between the two state-supported schools.

The committee had refused to allow press associations to run wires into the field and to allow any part of the game to be broadcast or placed on bulletin boards.

Only one wire, that of a telegraph company, was to have been allowed in the press box, under a ruling, and that was to have been used only for carrying period scores. Details were to be released at the end of the game.

Lusitania Plays Fore River Sunday

The Lusitania Recreation and Fore River soccer elevens will resume their ball rolling in the cup ties this week-end when they clash at the Lusitania stadium, Cambridge, Sunday, in the opening round of the national cup.

With the rivalry existing between these first class elevens and the determination of each to go further in the competition, for it is an elimination event, the fans are certain to witness a real he-man battle with no quarter asked nor given.

EX-TEAMMATES ARE NOW RIVAL COACHES

By BILL CONNELL

Two members of the 1928 Boston College championship eleven will be friendly enemies as coaches on Saturday when St. Mary's high of Brookline plays Cathedral high of Boston in a Catholic high school league game.

Dave Dillon of Cathedral high coach, and John "Cupie" Kilroy, St. Mary's mentor, are the pair. Both of them were valuable units of the '28 edition of the Eagles, which went through the season unbeaten.

Both were linemen and only the presence of some other splendid material kept them from taking an extra share of the fame of that team.

Bill Connell

Dillon is in his second year as head coach at Cathedral, where he has had success with the material on hand.

Cupie Kilroy, rotund brother of Bernie, succeeded the latter at St. Mary's this year when Bernie accepted the position as head coach at Natick, where he has been having conspicuous success.

So when the St. Mary's gridmen face the Cathedral high team on Saturday there will be more than the usual zest of a league game, with these two former mates in charge of the rival elevens.

Talk of shifting the Notre Dame-Lynn English-Saints night game to a Boston field because of lack of room at the Lynn field, where the tilt is scheduled, is cut short by the statements of Principal F. R. Willard and faculty manager of athletics Thomas Griffin of Lynn English high, who say that the game will be played at Lynn, as originally scheduled.

"We can get 14,000 in at the Lynn field," said Griffin today, "and we want to keep the game at home for the sake of the Lynn folks who would be unable to attend the game if played at Boston."

P. G. A. Gets None of Cut, Says A. R. Gates

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP)—The agitation (at the request) by the Professional Golfers' Association for 10 per cent of tournament prize money, is ungarranted and unnecessary, according to Albert R. Gates, an officer of the association.

"The money does not go into the treasury of the P. G. A.," he said last night. "It is used to defray the expenses of the Ryder Cup matches which are played every two years between British and American professionals.

"Our tournament board, which is directed by Robert Harlow, offers to help these associations organize their events. In return we ask them to contribute 10 per cent of the prize money to the P. G. A. This contribution is entirely optional and there is no record that any of them presume would be brought to keep leading players from participating in tournaments.

Stribling and Christner Bout Off

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23 (AP)—The scheduled fight between Young Stribling and Kayo Christner at the Newark armory tonight was called off today by Harry Mendel, promoter. An injury to Christner's right knee was given as the reason.

Judge Landis Rules Against Farm System

Chicago, Oct. 23 (INS)—A ruling handed down by Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, today was interpreted as a slap at the farm system. Commissioner Landis' ruling stated that no major league club could draft a player from one of its own baseball farms.

Trudden's Return Helps Strengthen B. U. Eleven

The reinstatement of Jimmy Truden, Boston University's husky 200-pound sophomore guard to the grid squad has bolstered the Terriers considerably for their home tilt with Springfield this Saturday.

Trudden was dropped from the squad two weeks ago for reporting to the Nickerson Field camp at midnight, but he has convinced Coach Mahaney that he had learned his lesson, and has been allowed to don the togs again.

Jimmy will not start the Springfield game, but he will see plenty of action. He has started two games this fall and has looked like a real find.

Now that he has been restored back to the good graces of the Terrier coaches, he has been applying harder than ever, and stands a good chance of winning a regular job before the season is over.

His return eases Mahaney's worries quite a bit, as the biggest Terrier problem to Saturday's game is lack of capable reserve material.

Trudden can fill in at a guard or tackle, and he will probably be used in both positions, as he is the only lineman on the squad that is on a par with the starting guards and tackles.

Doubleheader in Billiard Tourney

Pocket billiard fans are offered a double-header this afternoon at Stats theatre club when play resumes in the sectional championship tournament. Seaback of this city will draw concessions with Arthur Woods, veteran New York cueist, and immediately afterwards Joseph Rego and Joe Prusita, Italian rivals hailing from Wilmington, Del. and Gloversville, N. Y., respectively, will share the spotlight.

Completing the program Messrs. Seaback and Prusita clash in the evening session, at 8 o'clock, in a 100 ball contest. In the event of a tie in number of games won for first place only there will be a playoff tomorrow.

B. C. Foes Land Tomorrow

DAYTON TEAM CONFIDENT OF WIN

The University of Dayton "Fliers" land in Boston tomorrow for their game with Boston College, a much more dangerous threat than they were accounted a week ago. The Fliers have faced a tough schedule this fall and have a record of a pair of wins and losses to date.

At the beginning of the season the Dayton game was looked upon as a sure win for the Maroon and Gold. But since Fordham and Villanova have taken the Eagle's measure, the game with the Flyers has taken on a much different aspect.

Splitting even in four games, the Flyers have defeated Ohio Northern 14-0. In their next game they crushed Georgetown 20-0, and then fell before the powerful Ohio Wesleyan in a fast and furious game, 7-6. In their first night game the Flyers were licked by Oglethorpe, 6-0.

With only two touchdowns scored against them the Westerners must have a strong defence. The line averages over 180 pounds from end to end. Meyer at left tackle is the heaviest man in the forward wall, tipping the scales at 220, and has developed into a bulwark of strength under Bill Belanich, the line coach.

Cabrinha a Mainstay of Dayton Team

The mainstay of the Dayton team is Cabrinha, a six-foot quarterback who is in command of the team due to the fact that the Flyers do not elect any captain. Cabrinha weighs over 190, but with this single exception the Dayton ball carriers are very light and depend on speed and deception for scoring punch.

Like the Eagles, the Flyers have been plagued by injuries all fall. But whereas McKenney is starting a team that is composed for the most part of substitutes, the visitors will be at their full strength.

Three of the Dayton vets who have been out will be back in the game against the Eagles. They are Hank Meyer, the big tackle; Carl Sackwitz and Joe Cabrinha, the acting captain. All three are Hawaiians and their presence in the game bodes ill for the Eagles.

Sackwitz, a regular center, has been converted into an end by Coach Baujan, on account of the lack of wingmen. He will probably start at right end although a sophomore, Johnny White, has been fighting hard for the job. The other end assignment has been won by Joe Colan.

B. C. Rifle Team Call Is Issued

Herbert J. O'Connor, '31, president of the military club at Boston College, has issued a call for candidates for the rifle team, a unit of the military club. A quintette of sharpshooters will be enlisted from those practicing on the indoor range in the basement of the science building. This consists of a 50-foot gallery on which a .22 calibre Springfield rifle will be used, while a .30 calibre rifle will be used on the outdoor range which will be located at Fort Banks, Winthrop.

Yale Ready for Tilt With Army

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22 (US)—Although Head Coach Mal Stevens of the Yale football eleven kept his promise to run off no actual scrimmaging in his preparedness policy for the Army game Saturday, he sent the varsity through half an hour's breaking-through effort, in which the players ran their new plays off against the scrubs in modified drill. There was no momentum and the plays stopped as soon as they reached the line.

The coaches merely wished to test the positioning of the regulars in stalking the plays into the opposing rush line. There was practically no defensive work done.

Horton Smith's Golf Lessons

The "Halg" is well worth copying in most golfing matters and he is most punctilious about posing as correctly as possible; see Picture 1.

Many pros pose in an upright position because some sun-golfing cameraman says, "I can't see your face very well that way." I have even seen some of my professional brethren place their caps on the backs of their heads to please the photographer.

I regret very much to have to note that most golf magazines regularly publish pictures of well-known golfers posing bolt upright That may mislead many.

When you not only follow-through bent but finish bent you are using pivoting muscles only on one even plane.

When you finish bolt upright, it is quite common for the lifting muscles to neutralize the pivoting muscles and you at least lose distance not to speak of topping, slicing, toeing, etc. The beginner tries to cure such faults by going down some more and digging which means but an exchange of ills.

MacDonald Smith in Picture 2 has the typical British finish—practically bolt upright. It was particularly noticeable in pictures of the finishes of both recent international teams—Walker Cup and Ryder Cup—that the American were practically all bent over, while the British were mostly bolt upright. It is granted that the British follow-through bent, but it is infinitely better practice to not only follow through bent, but finish bent. Many of the British pro stars who are in this country have adopted the American finish; in fact Jock Hutchinson begins his walk after the drive in a bent position! Perhaps he is just clowning when he does that.

Anyway it is just as easy to finish bent as it is to finish bolt upright and it does away with that critical remark, "Oh, you looked up!"

Bernard Darwin, the great British golf writer, says that if he can just see a golfer in the distance he can tell whether he is American or British by his finish. He said practically all leading Americans watch the flight of the ball in the best position like shown in the Picture 3 of Bobby Jones who, by the way, developed a new manneism recently. At Merion it was noticeable he had his right heel off the ground when he was addressing the ball. Hundreds of Merion galleryites and thousands of others will be trying this out, as it was quite noticeable and they were commenting upon it. Perhaps he had a blistered right heel and was favoring it. Maybe Mr. O. B. Keller will enlighten us upon this weighty detail in the near future.

It is pretty chilly down by Nantasket's sad sea waves these days, but that matters not to the doughty miniature golfers. The outdoor course at Worrick Inn, one of the most popular of Bay State layouts during the summer months, is still doing a big business. Every hour of the day and night, boys and girls can be found going around.

We saw Charlie Kelley, sales manager of Tiny Tee Golf, close a sale in the wee small hours this morning. The demon salesman showed his customer all evening and a few hours after midnight cornered him in a lunchroom and the pair agreed to terms over a cup of coffee.

Course owners must put up an organized fight against all legislation directed against them, or they will be in a bad way next year. There will be several bills before the next session of the Legislature to increase the burden of course owners.

The members of the Miniature Golf Operators' Association, recently formed at the suggestion of the Boston Evening American, realize this, and one of their first tasks will be to appoint a committee to take steps to defeat all measures which may hurt the game. Other owners who feel the same way about it are welcome to join the organization.

More room in which to play is what the average bantam fan will be looking for on the outdoor courses next season and the smart owners are buying large tracts of land outside of the city where a pitch shot as well as a putt will be possible. These owners will succeed.

Claude Davidson's classy indoor course on the fifth floor of the Hotel Bradford on Tremont st. opened with a bang today. The early players voted the new greens excellent.

Over 400 Entries for Horse Show Next Week at Garden

More than 400 horses, representing the aristocracy of horsedom, will compete for $30,000 in prize money in more than 100 classes at the gigantic spectacle which will unfold before an admiring audience during the Boston Horse Show at Boston Garden, Oct. 28 to Nov. 1, inclusive.

Beginning next Tuesday afternoon performances will be held each afternoon and evening during the five days of the show. An average of from 10 to 12 competitions will be judged at each performance.

Topping the program in importance will be ten $1000 championship stakes and two $500 stakes, one each for heavy harness horses, trotters, three and five-gaited saddle horses, hunters, jumpers, hackney harness ponies, roadsters and military competition. The $500 junior championship stakes are for saddle ponies and five-gaited juniors.

The military touch to the Boston show will be given by the horse show teams representing five armies —United States, Irish Free State, Germany, Sweden and Canada. These splendidly appointed groups will close the show in a blaze of glory on Saturday night when they compete for the Louis K. Liggett trophy offered for the international rivalry for teams of three jumpers from each nation.

At the present time many of the foremost stables of the country are now on their way to the Boston Gardens, which is undergoing a complete remodeling for the reception of King Horse. The huge ring 110 feet by 265 feet in size, is being made ready, and stabling accommodations for the large entry are being made ready on the floors of the Exhibition Building adjoining the Garden.

German Army Jumpers Stabled at Com. Armory

The jumpers brought over for the show by the German army horse show team are now stabled at Commonwealth Armory, where they are jumped each day by the four officers of the team. Capt. Baron von Waldenfels, Lieut. Baron von Nagel, Lieut. Harald Momm and Lieut. Ernst Hasse. Nine of the leading jumping equines of Germany make up the entries for the Garden exhibition.

The Army teams of the Irish Free State and United States are now in New York training for the Boston show, while those of Sweden and Canada will arrive later. Boston will well remember the showing of Capt. John G. O'Dwyer of the Irish team, along with those of his associate officers, Capt. Harty and Capt. Finlay. Lieut. Ahearn will be the only new member of the team which jumped successfully at the show last year.

Representing America will be Maj. H. D. Chamberlain, Maj. C. P. George, Maj. A. W. Rolfe and Capt. W. B. Bruford and Lieut. E. Y. Argo. These riders are not strangers to the more than 50,000 spectators who witnessed Boston's exhibition last fall. And many come here fresh from triumphs scored in many of the leading shows of Europe.

Five-gaited classes and those for roadsters will be judged by A. S. Thompson of Paducah, Ky. He also will work on the commercial and draft horse entries. Claude Ludington of Rochester, N. Y., has been named to select the best of the trotters in their events. Heavy harness and appointments competitions have been allotted to the able hands of Andrew G. Bain of Hamilton, Ont., and Edward D. Farrell, Jr., of New York.

Expert Judges Secured for All Events

George C. Haas and Samuel L. Haynes, the former a New Yorker and the latter from Oklahoma City, Okla., will judge three-gaited and pony under saddle events. The military and polo rivalries are under the skilful direction of Maj. Henry Leonard and Maj. George S. Patton, Jr., of Washington.

Hunters and jumpers judges will be Julian Morris of Keswick Va., and W. Dirk Langen of Milwaukee. Ponies in harness will come under the eyes of Judges Andrew G. Bain and R. R. M. Carpenter of Wilmington, Del.

Maddy Sayles Joins Fittons' Grid Team

Because of the many hard games that face the Fitton football team, the management has secured the services of Maddy Sayles, former Harvard star and old Fitton favorite, who will be in the lineup of the Noddle Islanders on Sunday, when they face the strong Quincy Wanderers at Fore Banks, Winthrop.

AIR-COOLED ENGINE WINS TANK TESTS

Baltimore, Oct. 22—Far outstripping a regiment of standard seventon tanks recently at the infantry tank proving grounds, Ft. Meade, Md., the first air-cooled powered tank gave the first indications to U. S. Army testing officials of the tremendous possibilities in this type of power plant has over the water-cooled type of war machines, says P. E. Frost, Franklin Motor Car Co. of New England.

Already adopted almost universally in airplanes as the logical type of power plant for military or civil aircraft, the air-cooled engine now appears destined for complete usage in all manner of war and civil machines, according to engineer observers.

Operating a seven-ton tank, and thereby subjected to weight overload of 280 per cent compared to the passenger car for which it was designed, the stock Franklin engine used in the test registered speeds heretofore thought impossible and otherwise demonstrated air-cooled performance in spectacular fashion.

The most rigid tests such as trench crossing, hill climbing, speed, sustained power, top speed on long runs, fuel consumption and motor temperature were passed with flying colors. Air-cooled motors are particularly valuable to war machines, army officials point out, because of the lack of a vulnerable radiator, hose connections, fan, water pump and all the troubles ordinarily attributed to a water-cooling system.

NASH FLOODED WITH ORDERS

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 22—Enthusiastic comments and congratulations concerning the four brilliant series of Nash cars, whose presentation October 9 brought an entirely new conception of motor car values at astonishingly low prices, poured into Nash Motors Company headquarters from all parts of the country this week.

They augmented the insistent flood of orders taken by distributors and dealers during the formal announcement rush and convinced factory officials that in the Nash Eight-90, Twin-Ignition Eight-80, the Eight-70, and popular Six-65, Nash has one of the most successful motor groups in Nash history.

C. H. Bliss, sales manager, says reports from dealers in all parts of the country indicate that the new Nash cars for 1931 have received the finest reception on record from motor car buyers, who are appreciating to the full the new Nash deal for the new dollar.

"This type of public endorsement is gratifying in the highest degree," Mr. Bliss declared after analyzing the reports from many sections. "We feel that actual motor car value is the greatest appeal exerted by the new series and that their reception promises a greatly increased volume of business for the Nash organization. All of the comments we have received indicate another sweeping success for Nash merchandisers."

Canada Has Large Auto Export Trade

Canada is now one of the leading exporters of motor cars among the commercial nations of the world, her exports being, in fact, exceeded only by those of the United States. In the last fiscal year, Canada shipped automobiles to more than 50 different countries and automobile tire castings to almost as many. The chief markets were Australia, New Zealand, British South Africa and the Argentine.

INCREASED TIRE PRODUCTION

Detroit, Oct. 22—A daily production schedule 22 per cent greater than August was maintained during September by the tire department of the United States Rubber Co. It is planned at the present time to continue this same increased-production schedule through October.

The increased production schedule is unusual at this time, states J. F. O'Shaughnessy, general manager, because tire production usually tapers off toward the end of August and of a seasonal low ebb for the remaining months of the year.

The September schedule will be tiled with June for the third greatest production month of this year, being exceeded only by April and May, the peak production months for tires.

In spite of these production records, U. S. Tires show an inventory of finished tires on hand, both at Detroit and in the field, of 25 per cent below the figures as of September last year.

STUDEBAKER'S HIGH IDEAL

"The ideal of perfection is what motivates Studebaker engineers in their constant search for improvement. This fact is demonstrated very clearly in their test conducted on the new Studebaker Six," according to Gerald M. Sullivan, sales manager of the Studebaker Sales Co., 900 Commonwealth ave., Boston.

"Mounted on a dynamometer, the new Studebaker Six was run wide open for 150 hours—equivalent to ordinary road operation of 15,000 miles at top speed. With the test completed, a minute examination of the engine revealed no mechanical failure anywhere.

"During the test, every sort of road and driving condition was simulated. For the first 50 hours, for example, a drag was applied to the dynamometer, permitting the motor to operate at 3000 r. p. m.—equivalent to 55 miles per hour, under the same strain and stresses as would be encountered on a 4 per cent grade. In other words, the car was made to climb a 4 per cent hill, 7750 miles long, with the throttle wide open.

"For the second 50-hour period, the motor was operated at 3500 r. p. m., equivalent to a speed of 65 miles an hour. For the last 50 hours at 3800 r. p. m., equivalent to a speed of 70 miles an hour."

America Leads in Highway Mileage

Of the 7,800,000 miles of highways of all types in the world, the United States leads with a total of 2,016,281 miles. Russia is second, having 776,712 miles of highways. Japan follows with 575,325 miles, and then France with 405,023 miles. Other countries having over 100,000 miles of highways are Canada, 361,977; Australia, 300,000; India, 283,096; Germany, 216,672; United Kingdom, 179,095, and Italy, 118,627 miles.

FIRST PACKARDS HARD TO GET

A veteran owner's enthusiastic endorsement of Packard, revealing the difficulty of obtaining the delivery of a new car in the early days of motoring, was related by W. P. Naylor, vice-president of the Packard Co. of New England.

He said:

"When I bought my first Packard years ago people were paying premiums to get early delivery. This was not because of small production but rather Packard had the class in those days. Its lines were attractive.

"You could get your own color —though you had to wait a bit—as I did to get a Napier green. When it arrived it was worth all it cost and more. Each year added to its prestige. The company gave you a good car always and when you drove a Packard you knew it would get you there and back.

"Today you get 100 per cent more value for your money in a Packard eight with its price lowered $1000. This is not a sales talk, but merely an owner's opinion. You men with other cars may have had similar experience, but my trend has been Packard down through the years."

DODGE MEETS TRUCK NEEDS

The hauling problems of the fuel dealer have changed so materially in the last few years that a complete revision of trucking equipment has been found necessary to maintain profitable operation. Exhaustive studies made by Dodge Brothers marketing engineers show that the user of fuel, like many others, is buying on a hand-to-mouth basis. Orders are smaller but more frequent. Big deliveries have been eliminated. Inventories are lower.

The new order of things calls for fast trucks of the two to five-ton variety which are capable of making more trips with greater speed and flexibility to meet the demands of users who ask for one and two-hour delivery service, says W. M. Little, Massachusetts Motor Car Co.

Dodge Brothers engineers have been able to meet these requirements on a basis which means a lower original investment—less than $1000 for the smaller units—for the fuel dealer. To fit every need among fuel truck users, Dodge chassis are built with payload capacities ranging from 1000 to 11,000 pounds.

GALEN OPPOSES LEAGUE PLAN IN SENATE FIGHT

By E. B. TUSSELL
Universal Service.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 23—Internationalism, as represented by the League Court, became one of the major issues of the Montana senatorial campaign today.

Justice Albert J. Galen of the Montana Supreme Court, Republican nominee against Senator Thomas J. Walsh, issued a manifesto placing himself on record against ratification of the proposed protocol of the permanent court of international justice of the League of Nations.

"If elected to the Senate I shall vote against any world court which is paid or in any way controlled by the League of Nations," declared Justice Galen.

See no Way to Join
Explaining that he was originally opposed to three of the plan of setting up an international tribunal to determine questions that might involve war, Justice Galen gave the reasons for opposing the plan now at issue, for determination by the U. S. Senate, in the following statement:

"As a lawyer and as a member of the judiciary for 10 years, my position has been that if the United States were given proper recognition and voice in the Council of Nations, according to its size and importance, a World Court for the settlement of international problems might offer a solution that would prevent future wars.

"It must be manifest that it would not be desirable for the United States to enter into such a compact with no greater power or prerogatives than would be accorded a nation like Czechoslovakia.

Only Theory
"Only theory the World Court has its appeal, but in practice I doubt the advisability of any such entangling alliance with foreign nations.

"The present World Court, which is operated and controlled by the League of Nations, is unsatisfactory. Its judges are elected and paid by the League of Nations. They can be retired and pensioned by the League of Nations.

"The present World Court is in effect the attorney-general of the League of Nations and must do its political bidding.

UNALTERABLY OPPOSED
"Even the league itself would not accept the United States as a member of the league's World Court on the terms laid down by the Senate, which at least partially protected the United States.

"As I have said before the theory of a World Court for judicial determination of disputes is a good thing but in practice the present World Court will not result in peace. It will foment trouble and possible war.

I am unalterably opposed to the League of Nations.

"If elected to the Senate I shall vote against any World Court which is paid or in any way controlled by the League of Nations.

"I do not favor any alliance that will permit the laboring classes of America to be placed in competition with the cheap labor of foreign countries where standards of living and wage scales are so low as to merely provide an existence. I believe that efforts should be made to further restrict immigration to this country and that no effort should be spared in upholding our standards of living in America.

"We should ever bear in mind the admonition of the Father of Our Country to beware of entangling alliances with foreign nations without being fully satisfied that the power and strength of the United States among the powers of the earth were given the recognition to which they are entitled, so as to in every manner safeguard the enviable position of the United States as the peer of any nation on earth."

Cure Suggested for Aged Unemployment

Editor Boston American:

Several days ago I clipped an editorial from your "Letter Box" and today the answer and solution to this man's problem appeared.

Undoubtedly, as is said, there are many here in Boston who have had a remarkable lifetime and who have known better times, but perhaps through no fault of their own have not made the grade in financial independence, and now at 50 or 60 find themselves unwanted in the modern business world, yet with, in many cases, 20 years of usefulness to themselves and the world ahead of them were the opportunity but presented.

Here we have a group of men, tired and weary of city life whose only bright ray of hope would seem to be the quiet and peace of the country with its chance to earn an honest living. Past the desire to struggle and achieve and the craving for excitement, which lures so many of our young country people to the city, and yet who manfully and rightfully believe there should be some opportunity for them to take care of themselves.

We have hundreds of good farms vacant and deserted right here in New England. We will admit that they have been abandoned in many cases because the family owning them have found greater opportunity in the city and that there is very little opportunity for any man today to lay up much money who is cultivating a New England farm, but they will give a man or couple a living.

Of course many, it will have to be admitted, would be unfitted to go onto a farm, who had never know anything of farm life.

However it does seem as if there was something looking in a civilization that will permit the wasting of perhaps some of our best American citizens on the one hand and the failing to ruin of our countryside in many instances on the other from the absence of some agency for the bringing of them together.

Certainly a society so capable in solving our other problems and wealthy enough to care for many less worthy causes could find some answer.

Could not some group of wealthy public minded societies take a hand in such a work and prove the means of giving these men and women, such as were fitted and able, the opportunity they desire and at the same time keep up our glorious New England countryside that has such a remarkable record behind it in the deeds it has seen and the men and women it has produced, and if many of them are no longer profitable in the eyes of those who measure everything by the golden yardstick, at least they can be made havens of refuge for those no longer able to keep up the pace of the modern business world.

Ford Hall Forums Seen as Menace

Editor Boston American:

I have been reading constantly of the disgusting un-American activities of the undesirable Communists. I agree heartily with Asst. U. S. Atty. John W. Schenck, our mayor and Governor, that such "nuisances" be deported from the United States. Such inappreciative ignoramuses have no right to live in our beautiful country.

I consider America the most wonderful country in the world, and if these "Reds" don't care for the freedom and possibilities this country offers, why do they stay here? They should attempt to carry out their ridiculous ideas in other lands where they may be wanted.

We should not have to put up with such undesirables. A great many of our high schools and colleges seem to allow lectures based on atheism, socialism and communism. This tends to affect our young generation. They should not be allowed, as it is against our sane and peaceful American ideals.

Another menace to our cultured city of Boston is Ford Hall. It seems to be a general meeting place for everyone who is against American principals. I wish investigations could be made.

Hit-and-Run Drivers Called Worst Fiends

Editor Boston American:

Shame upon these hit and run fiends! That killing of two women in the most careless, indifferent manner in the village of Somerset, Mass., Sunday night, just makes your blood boil. There is honor among thieves, but the hit and run fiend is one of the meanest, most contemptible offenders. Thank fortune they are few and far between. Many drivers have honor with them but these murderers of the road deserve not only to have their license withdrawn but to be branded with some mark that would keep them before the public as fiends of the road.

Careless Autoists Kill Young Trees

Editor Boston American:

Are trees planted by the side of the road in country towns "jay-walkers"?

Some drivers of autos must know that saplings have been planted along the curbing of a road and some without any curb are planted there, to beautify the street and replace many old trees which have been cut down because they are dead.

Many of these saplings have been mowed down and killed by careless auto drivers. In one I am 12 of the [illegible] have been destroyed by autos mounting the pavements.

There is no excuse for this. It is downright carelessness.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

A number of young students, just fresh enough to bounce every one with their opinions, would like to see the following events:

Prince of Wales fall in love and get married. . . . Gov Allen sport a mustache for the coming election. . . . Mayor Curley pick a few of the flowers out of his splendid oratory and circulate them among some of the radio speakers who are so dry. . . . Bishop James E. Cassidy, of Fall River, come up to Boston and agitate sidewalks along roads in outlying sections of Boston. . . . More consideration for women bootleggers, mothers many of them, who made beer, sold it to keep bread in the months of starving children. . . . Arrest of the men who bought the beer. . . . Less competition on busy thoroughfares in Boston between traffic officers and traffic lights. . . . People crossing streets to keep to the right and not aim at stepping on your corns

THE PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

The Maritime Association on business conditions of the port of interest to steamship circles. The Transatlantic passenger movement, middle of this month, for both west and west bound traffic.

Up to Oct. 17 the total number of people crossing the Atlantic was 1,159,042. This was a decrease of 43,378 compared to a similar period of last year.

A significant factor is that most of the decreases were in the higher priced accommodations such as first cabin and second class. The total decline in first class carrying alone was 19,000.

The Maritime Association report states:

"This decline bears out previous reports that the current year will be remembered, by shipping men, as one of the worst since the close of the war."

Out of this depression of the past season there seems to be arising a confidence that 1931 will be far better. Many of the steamship experts are giving more thought to booming the third class travel, especially of the so-called middle classes off for brief vacation trips or foreign born people returning to their home lands.

will be held November 2-21, at the Hotel Statler. Those who will represent the Maritime Association are Charles F. Spencer Jr. vice chairman, Charles F. Dutch and William P. F. Ayer.

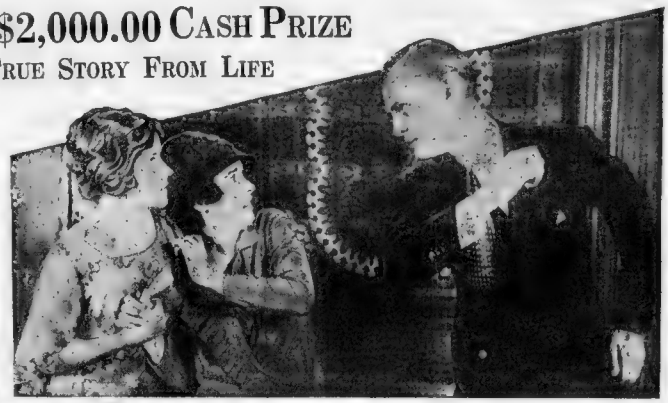
TRUE STORY FROM LIFE



The Lure of the Younger Woman

Although Eleanor was years older than Albert, her husband, they had enjoyed ten years of gloriously happy married life, and, in spite of the fact that she was verging upon middle age, they were still sweethearts.

Then fate sent Erva into their lives, an orphan girl of fifteen, half Gypsy, half English, pretty, talented, attractive. They loved her, adopted her, lavished their affections upon her.

Gradually, as Erva blossomed into a beautiful and charming woman, Eleanor, with her woman's intuition, sensed a subtle change in Albert's regard for the girl they had taken in—and in Erva's regard for him. With aching heart, she saw Albert's paternal love for Erva change to the tender, passionate regard of a lover for his sweetheart and Erva's from filial devotion to the sweet possessiveness of a woman toward her mate.

As yet, neither realized the devastating change that was taking place, these two people whom Eleanor loved most in all the world! But they soon would know—and when they did, what misery, what unhappiness would result!

What could she do? What would you do in Eleanor's place? What could any woman do?

What actually did happen makes one of the most engrossing and moving stories that was ever lived.

It is published complete in the big November issue of True Story, now on the news stands. Entitled "The Girl We Took In," it is told by Eleanor, the woman with graying hair, who had to sit by while the lure of the younger woman stole into her husband's heart. If you thrill to the joy and tragedy of life you will find it a living tale of conflicting human emotions that will grip you as you have seldom been gripped by any story. Read it, by all means.

Goldie Slays Last of His Gangsters

CHAPTER 23

POLACK ANNIE, wide awake, lay in the fantastically huge bed and stared hard-eyed through the open leaded window at a branch that swept by, the leaves crimson and russet in the bright autumn morning sun.

A burst of violent whistling cut through the bathroom door, and the two hard, vertical lines between her eyebrows deepened. She wished Goldie wouldn't whistle, or, if he had to whistle, that he would try to keep on the key. And that he'd whistle something other than the Maine Stein Song.

It was harder to take than she had thought it would be. The [illegible] had [illegible] changed everything for her. Now she knew what he [illegible] in store. At least to [illegible] off. The [illegible] she had [illegible] off [illegible] and Goldie [illegible]

Grinned Merrily

The [illegible] and [illegible] of [illegible] Goldie. He [illegible] his face a [illegible] effect with thick white shaving cream. His black, oily hair was wet, curled and rumpled. The gold buckles on his suspenders gleamed. His gorilla-like arms were covered with thick, curling hairs and a black thatch peeped forth at his chest.

"Well, Annie, Babes how you feel this beautiful morning, eh?" he grinned, waving his solid-gold handled razor in a typical Latin gesture, and falling into Latin mannerisms of speech, as he often did when he felt jubilant [illegible]

She [illegible] [illegible] a grotesque [illegible] of [illegible] good [illegible] [illegible] ly with [illegible] [illegible] drying wet.

She shuddered

"You feel better after you rest," he rumbled reassuringly. "How you like your Goldie, eh? You rest awhile and I go an' bring you some breakfast. I'm going to treat you right, Annie, you can bank on that, Babes. You're mine now, an' everything what's mine is covered with gold."

He gave her a final pat, commencing to [illegible] and swaggered back into the bathroom, rubbing the lather into his whiskers, closing the door behind him.

Annie stared again at the blood red leaves in the sun.

A bird was singing. Was it a robin? She couldn't tell a robin from a hawk. She wished Goldie would stop whistling so she could hear the robin. Why did she feel so strangely, bitterly hostile toward Goldie?

"After all," Annie mused, "I'm no angel I been through plenty tougher than this. I could be a lot worser off. It's a swell layout. He seems to of fell for me hard, and he's a Big Shot."

But she could not drive off the gooseflesh. Some hidden feeling, now strange, unanalyzed urge kept whispering to her insistently that she must hate and distrust Goldie.

She glanced around the luxurious room, its Heuhorn splendor marred only by a few scattered possessions of Goldie. His tan longues where he had kicked them off, a shirt tossed into a corner, his vest and coat hung over the back of a little chair before her dressing table, with the two long-barrel golden automatics which Goldie carried, in their holsters lying on the seat of the chair.

Tried to Relax

She tried to relax. Goldie whistled on endlessly. Then he stopped singing and was chattering as though scolding.

She stared at the window, but snapped out of her interim into sudden, frozen terror when a hand [illegible] a hand encased with dry blood that showed neatly black in the bright sunlight—reached over the edge of the window sill and clung to it.

Annie stifled her scream in a second and pulsed her possibilities of rushing to the bathroom or leaping across the chamber to Goldie's glittering pistols.

In that split second she decided her best chance of warning Goldie would be to engage the intruder in conversation. If she screamed Goldie would rush out unarmed to face bullets. If he heard her talking, he would stand still in surprise for a moment, and that moment would reduce danger threatened [illegible]

Tousled, dead-clotted hair followed the hand. And then a face—the most awful face she had ever seen. One cheek was torn and covered with [illegible], plastered gore. The eyes were protruding fireballs. The rest of the face and the clothes [illegible] above the sill were blood-stained and clotted.

"Monk!"

She had tried today it in a loud voice, to say [illegible] to ask him why he looked thataway and why he had entered the house by a rear [illegible] But her [illegible] was paralyzed and the word [illegible] a parched whisper. Her eyes [illegible] protruded.

Monk waved primly [illegible] at her, as he painfully hung a [illegible] over the sill. Goldie was still whistling in the bathroom.

Monk, swaying on his feet in the room, signalled silence [illegible] a finger on his lips

Something in his [illegible] det

The engagement of Jack (Judge) Saef of the executive staff of the Publix Uptown Theater to Miss Ann Eisenberg of 31 Hiawatha rd., Mattapan, was announced today.

EDUCATIONAL GUNS TO GET EMPLOYES

Strikes and Force Out of Question, C. L. U. Head Tells Conference

Organized labor's drive for a five-day week of 40 hours will be peaceful, John Van Vaerenwyck of the Boston Central Labor Union said today at the fourth of Mayor Curley series of luncheons at the Parker House for finding ways and means of ending unemployment.

"The American Federation of Labor does not intend to win by force," he said. "There will be no strikes to get the employers to accept. By education we hope to convince them of the truth and justice in this great economic fact.

"We people of the United States created the greatest wealth in the world in spite of the fact that the working day was cut from 12 to 10 hours, and later to eight hours.

"The garment workers were the first to adopt the principle of the 40-hour week, and the reason was that they found their work was becoming seasonal, with long periods of idleness.

"Under similar conditions the building trades put it into operation and it has worked perfectly. But its universal adoption depends necessarily on the attitude of the employers."

Prof. Harry Wooster of Tufts, while favoring the five-day week for other reasons, said he did not think it would solve the unemployment problem

Prof. Carroll Doten of M. I. T. doubted whether America was quite ready for this innovation. He denied that the country suffered from overproduction, saying that "until we produce more than $700 worth of goods per capita, we are not producing more than we can consume."

MICHELE GIGGI, an aged Medford citizen, secured building permit for a toolshed. Giggi thought it was too good for tools. He made the building his home. Neighbors would have him ousted from premises. The Medford board of aldermen will consider Giggi's predicament on Monday evening.

SHED SQUATTER TO BE PROBED

The home life of Michele Giggi, alleged squatter in Riverside ave., Medford, will be subjected to official scrutiny Monday night as the result—partly—of his alleged going to bed without benefit of window shades.

On that night the board of aldermen will attempt to work out the puzzle of Giggi's occupancy on 1800 square feet of land adjoining the home of Mrs. Mary E. Tierney, of 494 Riverside ave.

Mrs Tierney has complained that she feels very keenly the presence of the Giggi shack and declares her property will depreciate $1200 worth if Giggi is allowed to live there.

Giggi, in July, 1929, obtained a permit to build a tool shack on the land. A few months ago he dug a cellar beneath the shack. On Sunday he moved in and set up housekeeping.

Complaining that Giggi has no sanitary living conveniences, Mrs Tierney also said he undresses and dresses with no shades on his windows.

James W. Norton, alderman-at-large, contends Giggi built the tool shack with intent to avoid the law by residing there.

Frank B. Blodgett, building commissioner, claims the shed was erected properly as far as the [illegible] section was concerned and he has nothing more to do with the matter.

COUNCILLOR DOWD ASKS CITY TO GIVE RELIEF

Council Committee Meets to Plan Work for Those Who are in Need

Relief for the unemployed must be forthcoming immediately in order to assure the needy of shelter this winter, City Councillor John F. Dowd of Roxbury declared today at the opening of the initial session of the new City Council committee on unemployment of which he is chairman.

Dowd renewed his suggestion for a $1,000,000 appropriation in the new budget, to put 2500 men to work cleaning the streets and doing other tasks, and obtained from City Auditor Rupert Carven the statement that this would be perfectly legal.

Other councillors demanded that contractors be forced to hire Boston residents and that they be asked to dispense with labor-saving machines on public works for the present and do the work with day labor.

The meeting, held in the arteroom of the council chamber at city hall, was not open to the public, but newspapermen were admitted

Councillor Francis E. Kelly of Dorchester said Somerville and Cambridge were requiring contractors to hire only local residents and Boston should do the same.

Contractors should be brought before the committee and compelled to answer questions, Councillor John I. FitzGerald of the West End said, adding that the council members had approved $1,000,000 for construction work and other projects with little apparent benefit to their constituents.

If any money is left in the appropriation for the Public Works department this should be spent within the next two months on cleaning up the streets of the city, said Councillor Peter Murray of Ward 19, Jamaica Plain

GIRLS UPSET BY HULTMAN RULE

Not only must 25 girl employes of police headquarters report absences from the city on visits but they and all members of the department, civilian or otherwise, must establish residences in Boston, according to an edict of Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman today

A checkup of home addresses was ordered and a time limit will be set for removal within the city limits. At least one officer of the department of higher rank will be affected by the order but the girls consider themselves most badly off with the visiting ban.

Something infinitely worse than [illegible] depression entered their lives, the girls averred, when the [illegible] was given them.

The young women are in favor of equal suffrage, but placing [illegible] on the same plane as the police, with special permission required to leave Boston even for the briefest visit, is another thing again.

As Miss Margaret Ryan, who lives at No. 26 Perkins st., Jamaica Plain, and is a stenographer in the office of Capt. Joseph Harriman, observes:

"How is a girl going to know when she will receive a last-minute invitation to a dance, an auto ride, or a week-end visit? Manifestly it would be impossible at that time to obtain permission to leave the city."

Extortioner Gets Three to Five Years

A sentence of three to five years in state prison was imposed today on Charles Ransford of Buffalo, N. MERCURY DROPS TO 20 DEGREES

Cold weather records for six years were equalled in Middlesex County today. An official minimum of 20 was recorded in Concord, with unofficial readings of 37 in Burlington and 39 in Lexington.

While the official minimum for Boston from 4 to 8 a. m. was 36, two degrees higher than yesterday, thermometers on the street registered below-freezing temperatures, with the mercury generally hovering around 25 in suburbs.

Only twice in six years has the mercury dropped officially to 20 on this date, in 1925 and 1928 On October 31, 1924 the official minimum was 18, and the record for 40 years is 17 reached in 1904 and 1907

Indications are for fair and slightly warmer weather tonight and Friday.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

COUNCIL TO CONVENE ON NOV. 20

Six States to Send Delegates to Trade Conference Here Next Month

New England is passing through the current depression with less disturbance than other areas with which its industries are in competition, President Redfield Proctor of the New England Council declared today.

The council leaders issued a formal call today for 300 industrial, commercial and agricultural organizations in the six states to send delegates to the sixth New England Conference which will be held in Boston Nov. 20 and 21.

"In our efforts to promote business progress in New England we are serving not ourselves alone, but the nation as well, for a prosperous New England is essential to our national prosperity," he said.

"Careful observation, supported by business statistics, indicates that New England is passing through the current depression with less disturbance than those industrial areas with which it is chiefly in competition.

"President Hoover, at Cleveland, reminded us that we need not wait upon the recovery of the rest of the world. So, too, the business organizations of New England should not delay in lending their best brains, and their best leadership, to the task of preparing for the better business ahead."

They were taken to Station 9, Dudley st., and while waiting for the arrival of their parents they showed the officers how two brave little girls could wrestle with a good-natured dog, and it was good entertainment.

Four-year-old Helen lives at 669 East Second st. and three-year-old Helen lives at 673 East Second st. They promised their mothers faithfully today that they had seen all they wanted and would wander no more.

Gov. Allen 'Passing Buck' on Unemployment, Ely Charges

By BERNARD J. DONEBTY

That Governor Allen, like President Hoover, had done nothing to relieve unemployment other than "pass the buck" to the cities and towns, was charged at a crowded noon rally today in Faneuil Hall by Joseph R. Ely, Democratic candidate for Governor.

He contended that the President passed the job along to the Governors of the states and that Allen simply referred it to the municipalities.

In addition to Ely, other speakers were Marcus A. Coolidge candidate for senator; Mrs. Carrie L. Miner of Pennsylvania and Strabo V. Cate, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

Candidate Ely claimed that the mantle of the old leaders of the Republican party has fallen on "feeble, slothful and inefficient" shoulders and that the affairs of the state and nation should no longer be entrusted to them.

CHEER SMITH'S NAME

Ely denounced the Eighteenth Amendment and brought his audience to its feet when he referred to former Governor "Al" Smith as "that great emancipator of majority."

Former Mayor Andrew J. Peters introduced the speakers.

He declared that for the first time in his memory the prosperity sag of the Republican party had deserted it.

He blamed conditions on the crash of the stock market after the speculation "orgy" had been encouraged by the administration at Washington.

Ely also stated that the number of unemployed in the country was now between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000.

Candidate Coolidge criticized the Republican tariff bill and again defined his position on the Eighteenth Amendment. He said he was for repeal but that as it would take at least six years to bring it about, in the meantime he favored a modification of the Volstead act.

Mrs. Miner declared that the Republicans have failed to make good on their promise of continued prosperity.

G. O. P. CITES LEAGUE

While it is true that wages have not been reduced, she said it was true also that the men are now working but a few days a week where they formerly worked a full week.

Stating for the first time from prohibition, unemployment and other domestic problems the Republicans today flung the issue of America's important foreign policy into the Massachusetts campaign.

Speaking in behalf of William M. Butler, G. O. P. senatorial candidate, former Mayor William E. Weeks of Everett accused Marcus A. Coolidge, Joseph B. Ely, Democratic candidates for senator and governor, and Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the Democratic state committee of being disciples of mistrums of their party, including the League of Nations.

The hearing was before Chairman Lyman of the Public Works Department, who stated the petition would probably receive favorable consideration.

SOCIETY LEADERS TO PROTEST GRADING OF BOSTON DEBUTANTES

PARENTS OF GIRLS IRED BY ACT

Seventy-One Boston "Debs" Listed in "No Man's Class"

by Writer

Boston's social leaders were preparing to protest today the grading of Boston debutantes in the classes when it became known that "Audacious" in the Tatler and American Sketch had not only selected a class "A" [illegible] first families here to class "B," "C," and "No Man's Land."

Rage swept the ranks of the socially elite as it was whispered about at the brilliant affair of Helen Cabot of Jamaica Plain [illegible] in Class A and trimmed very neat and pretty," in what ranks one of the 20 brilliant guests had been [illegible]

Close on [illegible] of the article came [illegible] mothers of daughters who had been placed in the different classes.

It was impossible to get any of the young women consigned to what it interpreted to be unfavorable classification, to comment on the article for publication

71 IN FOURTH CLASS

Sale of the publications in which the list appeared was reported as [illegible] throughout Boston. Newsdealers reported sell-outs on all available copies. Reading rooms also reported that copies had been lifted.

Seventy-one of Boston's debutantes were placed in the "No Man's Land" class under the return by the Tatler that they were those whose families were either [illegible] or of whom one seldom [illegible]

In the listing which caused the [illegible] included some of the foremost families among the social elite

A family is split in one instance in the selections, the name of a [illegible] appearing in Class A, while [illegible] appears in the "No Land" [illegible]

BUDS GLADDED

At the Cabot ball where the [illegible] were closely guarded from inquiries of newspapermen by those in charge of the affair the four classes were thrown together at the ball and mingled gaily.

A mother of a Milton debutante [illegible] was selected for the "No Man's Land" class asserted that she was displeasing to her [illegible] that as soon as her husband [illegible] home from a trip she will [illegible] immediate action to stop such [illegible] statements.

"Why is it preposterous to even think of such a thing," she stated. "The family has always had one of the highest places in society. The writer will hear from that article."

TAGS COST AUTO LICENSE

Major George A Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, today revoked the license of one Boston motorist whose car had been tagged four times by the police.

Other "four-taggers" have been notified to appear before Registrar Parker in person to show cause why their registrations should not be revoked on complaint they are not proper persons to operate a car.

Licenses of a score of motorists also were revoked for failure to have their automobiles tested during the two months period prescribed by law, bringing the total of this class of offenders punished to date to 184.

Registrar Parker was told that of a total registration of more than 500,000 pleasure cars in the state not more than 5000 neglected to have their automobiles inspected.

Many hastened to have brakes [illegible] steering wheels and other [illegible] tested and appeared [illegible] with yellow stickers. In such cases [illegible] have been merely suspended from two days to a week.

Dreary, Wind-Swept Marblehead Beach, Scene of Huge Liquor Seizure After Battle

BESSOM'S BEACH, at Marblehead, where police of Lynn, Salem and Marblehead seized 800 cases of liquor yesterday. Two hundred cases of the liquor seized was found cached in the mud flats off the beach. (Staff photo.)

LIQUID CHEER, destined for the trade around Boston that will never reach customers, is shown here piled high on a truck, outside the Marblehead police headquarters. The liquor, part of a load of 800 cases seized on Bessom's Beach, at Marblehead, after a battle with a band of bootleggers, was turned over by police to Customs officers, who supervised the shipment of the liquor to Boston. Two trucks and an auto were also seized at the beach. A sloop, from which the cargo of liquor is believed to have been landed, escaped in the darkness, while the police made the raid on shore. He is one of the youngest surgeons to receive this honor and of the 652 surgeons admitted to fellowship representing the United States, Canada, Mexico and the South American States he was one of the five "honor men" selected for special commendation the night of the convocation.

Dr. Murphy was educated in the schools of Medford and Harvard University, graduating from the Harvard Medical School in 1923.

He trained in surgery under the late Dr. John T. Bottomley, noted surgeon, and is a member of the hospital staff of the Carney Hospital in Boston and of the Malden Hospital.

$3,335,000 for Poor of Boston Next Year

Boston will spend $3,335,000 for poor relief and mothers' aid this year, Supt. Walter V. McCarthy of the Public Welfare Department told the Boston League of Women Voters today at the Twentieth Century Club, 3 Joy st.

McCarthy said this was an increase of $850,000 over last year, but in this Boston was fortunate, for other large cities were forced to multiply their expenses for relief from four to ten times, because of the lack of thoroughgoing systems. Philadelphia sent here to copy the Boston system, not having any public relief in operation

FOOD SCIENTISTS RECOMMEND EATING IN MID-AFTERNOON

Experiments Show That Sugar in Food or Beverages Overcomes Fatigue

Modern business invariably makes its greatest demands on workers during the latter part of the afternoon. Yet that is just the time of the working day when vitality is the lowest.

Recent scientific investigations have proved that this mid-afternoon fatigue can be quickly overcome by eating sweet cakes, a few pieces of candy, a dish of ice cream or the drinking of a sweet beverage. A glass of water sweetened with sugar will revive one in an amazing way.

The reason for this lies in the quick digestibility of refined sugar. There are few food products that nourish the body so speedily and, when the system is nourished, fatigue is noticeably decreased.

With practically no loss of time, and very little expense, a mid-afternoon snack can be enjoyed. Dispensers of sweet drinks and confectionery are within the reach of all. As a matter of fact, a few pieces of candy or sugar can be conveniently kept in one's desk and eaten when tired. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

AIR TEST STIRS CRASH RUMOR

Test flights of a seaplane glider off the Boston Airport today gave rise to numerous reports a plane had crashed into the harbor. The glider flown successfully many times, was manned by Dana Jefferson, president and chief designer of the Marine Glider Corporation of Gloucester.

A speed boat towed the glider for its takeoff. On the first few runs the glider rose from 50 to 75 feet, but did not cut loose from the boat. Later Jefferson cut loose and soared over the water.

The seaplane glider differs from the land glider in that it has no skids, its fuselage being like the hull of a boat. It is a monoplane.

Bay State Building Permits Mounting

Building permits of a total value of $6,546,847 were issued in this State during September, according to a report today by E. L. Taylor, industrial commissioner of the New Haven railroad. This amount, practically the same as during August, put Massachusetts eighth among the States. In August Massachusetts stood ninth. Fall River, Holyoke, New Bedford, Quincy and Springfield all showed noticeable increases.

ALLEN ASKS AID FOR SALLIES

Governor Allen, at the State House today, urged generous support for the Salvation Army in its $125,000 general maintenance appeal, now under way.

The Governor, in his statement, referred to the unsettled state of business.

"The Salvation Army stands ready at all times to feed the hungry, to clothe the naked, to give succor to those suffering from either mental or physical distress—in other words to render the most vital service at the most crucial periods," he said.

"If all who have steady incomes will aid even more generously this year than in the past, the army can carry on its work unimpaired."

The appeal of the Salvation Army, which is for funds to maintain its 26 institutions and departments, will continue until November 8.

"Young Germany is boiling with the spirit of revolt," says Lloyd George of England. He states further that the German situation presents features which are disquieting to the peace of Europe. Eastman Hits Ill-Gotten Corporation Profits

National regulation of the issue of securities of railroads and utilities and their holding companies was urged before the Associated Industries of Massachusetts members today by Joseph B. Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"The history of railroads and utilities in this country is well-nigh a chronicle of ill-gotten profits, and they have been the source of many enormous fortunes," he said in an address at one of 10 conference meetings here this afternoon.

"The chief opportunity for such ill-gotten profits is found in financing. It is an open opportunity when the issue of securities is not regulated. It is lost when they are regulated adequately."

He praised the Massachusetts system of regulating utility rates and securities.

"Nor is it enough to regulate only the securities of the railroads and utilities, for the same manipulations can be practiced through the device of holding companies.

"The game is to acquire control of a company, issue securities which are based in part on hopes rather than on actual investment, stimulate those hopes by various devices, unload upon innocent investors, widows and orphans preferred, and leave them holding the bag."

A common effort of utilities to make good on inflated values consists in endeavors to impair the efficiency of regulating commissions, he said, either through the selection of "desirable" men on the commission or the removal of "undesirables."

He asked the co-operation of business men in solving the freight rate problem and declared that while the mileage system had proved far from perfect no better had been presented to the interstate regulating body.

PARDON SOUGHT FOR LIFER

Two petitions for pardons reached Chairman Frank A. Brooks of the parole board today, one for John Poulacas of Holyoke, a lifer in State prison and the other for John P. Given, serving three to five years in Norfolk Prison Colony.

Poulacas was sentenced in 1915 for the murder of Mary Pappas a year before. She was shot through the head. Jealousy was established as the motive.

Given, a Watertown man who was prominent in Boston market district, was committed last year on a charge of receiving stolen goods. His pardon petition was signed by 30 marketmen.

The Poulacas hearing was assigned to November 6 and Given a to November 7. They must be approved by the board before presentation to the Governor and council.

2 SOMERVILLE SAFES ENTERED

The safes were in the offices of the Consolidated Expanded Metal Co. on the first floor of 137 Washington st., and the Wheeling Corrugated Co. on the second floor.

The office of Vice-President B. A. Thomas in the plant of the Franklin Creamery Co., 66 Washington st., was ransacked, but nothing of value taken.

LORETTA YOUNG AWARDED LEADING ROLE IN 'A LADY FOR LOVE' FILM

BADGER TO DIRECT STAR

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

(Copyright, 1930, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23—Marriage has certainly agreed with Loretta Young. From a little girl who looked as if she ought to be playing with her dolls, she has developed into a handsome young matron with style and dignity.

Miss Young were turned in her direction at the opening of "Young Sinners" at the Belasco Theater the other night. Not only has she gained in looks, but it is the opinion of those who know at First National studio that her technique on the screen is better. "A Lady for Love," by Alice Brenner Schultz has just been purchased for her. Undoubtedly this was purchased from the galley proofs, for with the scarcity of stories the producers are reading anything and everything in the way of novels and plays.

Louella O. Parsons

"A Lady for Love" is to be released as a novel and also as a play in New York. It is the story of a gymnasium teacher and a professor in the school. Clarence Badger is slated to direct Miss Young.

THE MARQUIS DE LA FALAISE, who is plain "Hank" to his friends, is directing "The Queen's Necklace" on the R. K. O. lot. Just a moment before you start correcting me, I know the Irish version was directed by Lowell Sherman, but this is the French edition. I had quite forgotten that Pauline Garon, who they pass, Henri is here for leading woman, was formerly Mrs. Lowell Sherman, but in these days there are few divorced husbands and wives who do not greet each other pleasantly when they pass. Hendi is here to keep now, for he has signed a contract with R. K. O. and has much to say not only about direction but about everything that has to do with the French, Spanish and Italian versions of motion pictures.

JUST WHAT HAPPENED when young Douglas Fairbanks walked out of the R-K-O office and out of "Beau Ideal," is known only to Herbert Brenon and young Douglas Jr. aren't telling. Doug is not temperamental, and he went to work on the R-K-O lot just after his success in "The Dawn Patrol," but the boy has a mind of his own. The most oft-repeated story is that Doug and Mr. Brenon did not agree on the way the part should be played. Add well that ends well, and Doug is now back at First National getting ready to play the starring role in "Chances," by A. Hamilton Gibbs, when the studio opens. The same crew that did so well in "The Dawn Patrol" will do their technical best in the Gibbs tale. Howard Hawks will direct, and John Monk Saunders is writing the adaptation.

YOU MAY COUNT any week lost that Ben Lyon isn't listening in on some film offer or other. Ben worked on "Hell's Angels" for two years without a murmur and as much as looking at a camera in another studio. But it's going to be different now. He has hardly had a week between pictures since Howard Hughes put the "finis" on his war spectacle. Ben has been invited by James Cruze to play the leading role in "The Command Performance." The chances are he will accept. Marion Dixon, who has been enjoying a holiday in Chicago with her husband, Edward Hillman, and his family, has been tested for the leading feminine role. It's Marion's, if she wants it, and she probably does.

"IF I HAD A HOME HAM I would have some ham and eggs if I had the eggs" is a saying that might easily be applied to the movies. Robert Montgomery and Chester Morris will be the two men in the life of Ann Harding in "Paloma" if—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer can spare their popular juvenile. And if Chester Morris and Paths can agree on money, right now the question at court is the little old salary check. Well, that might be important to everyone.

FIFI DORSAY IN NEW SUCCESS

Until Fifi Dorsay, vivacious French comedienne, singer and dancer, went to Hollywood she had never faced a camera. A Fox Film executive, with rare foresight, visualized Miss Dorsay as just the type to play opposite Will Rogers in "They Had to See Paris." The bit she made in that production was a tribute to her talents.

Fifi Dorsay

Raoul Walsh now has her under the production of the Rogers picture and selected her for the role of Fifi Dupre in "Hot for Paris," co-starring Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe. Those Three Little French Girls," the picture at Loew's Orpheum next week, marks her fifth appearance on the screen.

Prior to coming to the talking screen, Miss Dorsay was for dancing and her chic singing to musical comedy and vaudeville

LOCAL TALENT ALLSTON HIT

The first of the Allston Theater "Local Talent Nites" was so well received that it will be a regular feature of the Thursday evening programs. A surprising amount of versatility and genuine talent was displayed by those who took part in this first program, and so well did they perform that the audience had a difficult time judging the winners.

Dal Flynn and Peggy Clooney, local dancers, were the winners of the first prize. The second prize went to Miss Marjorie Daniels, who entertained with a snappy tap dance, and the third prize was won by a harmonica quartet, made up of local newsboys.

Tomorrow evening promises to be a gala night, at the Allston Burt Campion who acts as master of ceremonies, promised many surprises. Mr Campion would be glad to hear from anyone desiring to participate on one of these programs. Address all communications to him at the Allston Theater.

HAVANA SCENE OF FILM

"The Life of the Party," in natural color, opens at the Washington Street Olympia and Uptown tomorrow for a limited engagement. It brings that dynamo of energy, Winnie Lightner, back again in the type of role for which she is famous, that of a smart-cracking gold digger —but this time in Havana. Miss Lightner is probably the greatest of all screen gold diggers.

Irene Delroy, Jack Whiting, Charles Butterworth and Charles Judels, all Broadway favorites, play prominent roles.

SKETCH BOOK STAR ENJOYS INTERVIEWS

William Demarest, one of the featured comedians in the Earl Carroll "Sketch Book," now at the Shubert for the rest of this week, says he finds mental exhilaration in being interviewed.

"There is something refreshing about a newspaperman's viewpoint," said Demarest, "that makes interviewing a pleasure to me. Often I turn a flip of cleverness on the reporters and so get information and world wide events totally different from that interpreted by the press of the world. And the questions they ask people of the stage, far from the gossipy kind, shows they have a keen appreciation of the theater and the many obstacles in the way of stage success. More than one interviewer has given me histrionic slants from the viewpoint of the playgoing public that have benefited me immeasurably.

"It is my opinion that newspaper and magazine interviews, providing, of course, the theater and its problems are treated seriously, help the profession to bring the actor and the playgoer into closer relationship that I see the opportunity to express my innermost thoughts on the subject on all occasions."

William Demarest for many years has been a great favorite of the vaudeville stage and a featured motion picture player of note.

FEATURES AT BOWDOIN

Beginning today and continuing for the remainder of the week the Bowdoin Sq. Theater puts forth a new program of pictures and selected vaudeville. One of the features will be "Captain of the Guard, a spectacular and lavish production in which John Boles and Laura La Plante will be seen in the feature role. The latter will be "On Your Back," where seeking models serve to entertain playboy millionaires. The cast includes Edmund Lowe, H. B. Warner, Raymond Hackett and Marion Schilling. Comedy features and four vaudeville acts appear. Tomorrow night is bargain night

GRIFFITH SEES NEW SCREEN TECHNIQUE

David Wark Griffith, who directed the remarkable picture, "Abraham Lincoln," now being shown at the Majestic, sees no future in the movies for unintelligent beauty. Not that he believes all beauty will be barred from the screen, but that looks will be inconsequential and the face will be of secondary importance.

"But what of the close-ups?" the interviewer asked the originator of them.

"They'll go out because their usefulness is over," replied Mr. Griffith. "We will have a new screen technique, with the movie public little knowing what it hears than what it sees. Not that the screen figures will be unattractive, but that we will not subject them to the taxing close shots which at present rule out a talented actress because she hasn't a perfect nose or a pretty mouth."

Mr. Griffith is as pleased with what Stephen Vincent Benet did in the way of dialogue for "Abraham Lincoln," and Mr. Benet is so happy about the way Mr. Griffith transferred his written lines to the screen that they will get together again. If all goes well and "Abraham Lincoln" continues to draw the generous crowds it has attracted to date wherever shown—Boston, New York, Chicago and Toronto—Griffith is planning to produce "John Brown's Body" on celluloid.

Griffith, who helped a lot of golden-haired girls to become famous in his earlier films, doesn't think the type has such an important place in the scheme of things. The important actresses of tomorrow will be much older than the youngsters of the silent days, he holds, because intelligence and experience will be the important factors in molding talent for firm characterizations.

He thinks that "Journey's End" and "The Front Page" are the two finest plays he has seen in his entire life, and that Hobson's Choice" is the finest of the latter was the most nearly perfect thing the stage of this era has to offer for itself.

Among the subjects tentatively considered by Mr. Griffith for production are "Jane Eyre," Ben Houston, and a spectacular production of "The White Slave," a Southern classic from the pen of Bartley Campbell.

THEATER MEN OPTIMISTIC

Optimism was the keynote and enthusiasm was marked throughout the addresses of the several speakers who voiced the brightening prospects for business improvement at the initial get-together luncheon of the Allied Theaters of Massachusetts.

President George A. Giles was toastmaster and he took occasion to outline briefly the aims and purposes of the organization, which embraces in its membership a large percentage of the theatrical interests of Massachusetts. He stated that this was the first of a series of luncheons which will be held regularly on the third Tuesday of each month; and the outside speakers of prominence would be secured to address the members at the gatherings to come.

Among the speakers were James J. McGuinness, executive secretary of Allied Theaters; G. Ralph Branton, Paramount Public division manager; Maurice Wolf of Metro Pictures; Joseph Brennan of Loew's Theaters; Thomas Bailey, of Paramount-Public; Edward A. Zorn, district manager Paramount-Public; Elias M. Loew of E. M. Loew's Theaters; Charles L. Winston of R. K. O. Theaters and Joseph Di Pesa of Loew's Theaters, who spoke for the press representatives.

IRENE DUNNE 'EARLY BIRD'

Irene Dunne, brunette from Louisville, Ky., who plays the lead in "Leatherneckings," now at the Keith-Albee, has enthusiasm for the talkies and Hollywood. The first day she was made up and on the set at 7 45 a. m. The call was for 8 30 and the old-timers like Louise Fazenda, Ned Sparks, Lilyan Tashman and Edward Cline, director, found everything all the preparations that were being made.

This "early bird" business afforded her a chance to get acquainted with the 60 or more technicians and probe a few of the mysteries of sound recording.

Miss Dunne's musical inclinations are both hereditary and acquired. Her mother was a famous singer and pianist, and Irene spent four years studying music at the Chicago Musical College. She played singing and dancing leads in "Irene," "Clinging Vine" Dillingham shows, and Ziegfeld's "Showboat." William Le Baron, vice-president in charge of RKO productions, saw her in "Showboat" and signed her to a contract.

Jobyna Howland has been cast as one of the four principal players in Paramount's "Anybody's Virtuous Sin." Louis Gasnier and George Cukor are the co-directors of this production.

The modern sculptured bobs do wonders to bring out your personality. But like other present-day modes of arranging the hair, they call attention to it. That's why it's so important nowadays to keep your hair soft, lustrous, abundant. The easiest and quickest way to give new lustre and color to hair which has begun to look dull and lifeless, is with Danderine. And it makes the hair softer, easier to arrange; holds it in place

Here's all you do. Each time you use your brush, just put a little Danderine on it. It removes the oily film from your hair; brings out its natural color; gives it more gloss than brilliantine. Waves "set" with it stay in longer

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It stops falling hair. A small bottle is enough to show its merit. Start on it tonight

Vanderbilts Await Heir

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, Oct. 23—The latest chit-chat from Newport has the longlegged bird about to build a nest in the eaves of Oakland Farm, the Rhode Island estate of the William H. Vanderbilts.

"Bill" Vanderbilt, who is one of the most unassuming young millionaires in the social ranks, conferred his name on Anne Colby last December. Since that time they have made their headquarters at Oakland Farms, due to "Bill's" interest in Rhode Island politics

"Bill" has a small daughter, Emily, named for her mother, the first Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, who now signs herself Mrs Emily Davies Thayer.

MARRIAGE REVEALED

"They" also tell me the stork is hovering over the menage of the Preston Sturgeses. Mrs Sturges will be remembered as Eleanor Hutton, daughter of Mrs Edward F. Hutton.

The alliance of the Hutton heiress and the author of "Strictly Dishonorable" did not meet with Mrs. Hutton's approval and the latter never has extended forgiveness.

Society, especially the younger set, will be interested—and surprised—to learn that pretty Elsa Emily Cover has been Mrs. Angus Duncan Mackintosh since October 4. On that date Elsa and Angus were wed in the Little Church Around the Corner with the Rev. Dr. Johns officiating

The bridegroom is a son of Mrs William R. Tucker, Jr., of Philadelphia by a former marriage, and is a great nephew of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, one of the supreme leaders of Washington's smartest social set. He has lived in New York for several years and since deserting Wall Street has been connected with the Pan-American Airways, Inc

Everywhere the women of America receive praises of their beauty, health and intelligence. The latest to add to these praises is Paul Archard, the great French writer, who says that "The U. S. woman is the most successful in the world." Her beauty and health thrive on the liberty here that amazes Europeans. Read this article in the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Only Women Should Teach Children, Expert Says

By NANCY BREWSTER

A child should be educated along the lines of its developing ego, or the child's conception of its own importance in the scheme of things, and should not be "educated to adult ideas by spanking."

This is how Dr. Fritz Wittels, noted psycho-analyst from Vienna, sees the problem of modern parents, and his final word on the subject of "The Ego of the Child," discussed before a capacity audience at Ford Hall yesterday, was "don't spank." He spoke under the auspices of the Massachusetts Civic League and the Judge Baker Foundation.

The normal child is first conscious of his own individuality, or ego, between two and four years of age, Dr. Wittels explained, but the consciousness of guilt for any of his acts during the expansion of his ego does not dawn until much later. This is why it is not only wasted effort to spank a child, but may be very harmful because of reactions that show in adult life, he said

FATHER NOT FIT TO TEACH

"Men, in my opinion, are not fit to educate young children," Dr. Wittels continued. "Fathers are too far away from their children to understand the mental processes that easily understood by mothers. Only women should teach, but they in turn should be controlled by men."

The strongest power in this world is maternal instinct, Dr. Wittels declared. No man ever hopes to excel the insight of a mother with her child

Nothing can happen to a baby before it has an ego that authority declared, because the infant is protected by the psychic love of its mother as effectively as by physical means.

The ego of a child is still an enigma to most scientists, Dr. Wittels said. Educators should always admit the fact that there is a wide difference between the ego of a child and the adult, he said

"When this fact is more generally admitted, educational methods will change. Children love themselves, and have no compunction for the suffering of others. To a certain extent, this is as it should be. It's correspondent to the adult attitude on death. While we all know that we must die, it is impossible for individuals to admit the fact to themselves. Religions have built up an enormous superstructure founded on this very feeling, to give comfort to the ego. We could not live an hour without being in love with ourselves."

ATTENTION WEAKENS CHILD

The child that is mastered in the pride of personal appearance, the cause of health and safety in traffic, is polished out.

When a child develops an exaggerated ego, because of receiving too much attention in his self assertion, that child is weakened for the battle of life, he showed

"These 'Sunday children' cannot stand disaster," Dr. Wittels said. "It crushes them to be forced to acknowledge that disaster could have overtaken them like the rest of humanity."

An inferiority complex can develop as easily as an exaggerated ego, he added, if a child is spanked into line without opportunity to develop his ego naturally

FASHION SEEMS to be going very whimsy this year. New fads for old. Any moment now we shall probably see dresses made of sheer straw! We deviate. What we mean is that there are some ravishing frocks being shown for afternoon and evening that are studded with gold or silver, embroidered in metallic thread or frankly jeweled. All these versions of the fundamentally same idea gleam delightfully under sun or moon

THESE COMING months are to be filled with luxury in fabrics and richness in furs—budgets and economic conditions notwithstanding. So these gleaming lights fall right into the picture.

CANTON CREPE is the best material to use for these metal threads, as it is a strong enough fabric to stand up under the wear and tear caused by the weight of the studs or jewels some evening frocks in chiffon have very simple insets in rhinestones, which is delightful—but then we get away from our story, concerning the harmonious blending of the lovely costume pictured

THE GOWN is of white crepe, all over embroidered in tiny gold metal dots, the skirt very full, from deeply pointed hip yoke. The neck is a rather shallow V, deeper in back where the bodice is gracefully draped. The narrow belt has a lovely buckle of amber and fine crystals, these stones repeated in the bracelet and ring. The round choker necklace is of seed pearls, and amber drops.

THE LONG sleeved jacket of white lapin fur has its front sections widely spaced to form revers, or fold closely to the throat.

THE FASHION of the short wrap for evening will not be abandoned. Young things adore it, and in soft fur the abbreviated wrap effectively tops long dresses, and adapts itself to modern modes.

IT IS interesting to note that the current "demure" theme in evening clothes is echoed in accessories as well. A few nights ago at the theater we observed that those who chose to emulate old fashion prints with their brief flaring jackets and billowy frocks also chose jewelry of naive design. Simple strands of pearls or the youthful round choker took precedence over elaborate earrings and ornaments.

[COOKING SCHOOL NOTE]

In the cooking school conducted under the auspices of the American recently, Mrs. Lila Pauline Cross stressed modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, she uses and recommends Crisco, the modern shortening.

Date Sticks

good for youngsters

(Mixing time: 10 minutes)

One mother I know realizes that her children need sweets. So she provides home-made confections like these Date Sticks. Made after this tested Crisco recipe, they satisfy the craving for sweets in a wholesome way. As nearly as possible all of the fuss and bother have been kitchen-tested out of Crisco recipes and a satisfaction added—the satisfaction of using a modern shortening which lends its own fresh flavor to the foods made with it.

¾ cup Crisco	3 cups flour
1½ cups sugar	1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk	2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda	1 cup chopped nut meats
	1 cup cut dates
	powdered sugar

Mix Crisco and sugar well. Add sour milk which has been mixed with soda. Then add flour which has been sifted with salt and baking powder, and fold in nuts and dates. Pour into shallow Crisco pan and bake 30 minutes in moderate (350° F.) oven. Cut into narrow slices while still warm and roll in powdered sugar. These cookies will take the place of less wholesome sweets for the children.

Fluffy? Yes, Crisco is now so fluffy you don't have to cream it.

COOK-COOS By Ted Cook

Here, fellow pessimists, is the water mark in prosperity hooey—

(Press Agent Item)

NEW YORK—If carelessness with money in it be the return to national prosperity, business conditions are rapidly improving according to the management of the New Yorker Hotel. Between March and August the average weekly sum carelessly left in trousers sent to be pressed was smaller than the late August and early September average. The hotel returned to guests more than $20,000 left in pockets during the last eight months.

Perhaps if everybody could leave more money in their pants, and send them to Roger Babson to be pressed, quite a healthy investment for good times could be built up.

Some statistician should compare the amount of small change found back of the cushions of overstuffed furniture during September with the amount found during August.

SAN JOSE, Calif., Sept. 15—Lane Adams and Pete Dunne from Mississippi had taken a sand and lime contract of getting $120 from two farmers in a marriage racket and jumped with the cash, Magistrate Martin sheltered her, just a kid of twenty-one, who wasn't sure what it was all about."

BLINKING SONG
We Make No Charge For Alterations

Backward, turn backward, O Time! in your flight,
Make me an optimist just for tonight!
Broker, call back from that echoless shore,
Take me again (and again) as of yore.
Smooth from my forehead the furrows of care.
Yank all the silver threads out of my hair;
Hint of quick profits on margin to reap—
Teach me again how to smile in my sleep.

Broker, dear Broker, the year has been long
Since last I was flushed by your lullaby song—
We sold on the bulges, we bought on the dips,
Recall how I plunged on Detroit Buzzy Whips?
You urged me to hold—and I did you'll remember,
I held like a drowning man all through November.
I held (I'm still holding!) in spite of the smack—
That is, I'm still holding—holding the sack.

Beware the Young Man Who Takes But Does Not Give

Forget Him, Says Miss Fairfax

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6:35 p.m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

There's a young man who works in the same business house as I do. He was always very nice and polite and one holiday him I invited him to our home to dinner. He accepted and made himself very agreeable to everyone. Since then he has limited breaks to come again and I've always fallen and invited him. He seems to enjoy himself fine but—he has never suggested anything in the way of return hospitality. I know he's a amount of hasnary and as it's over $4000 a year, don't you think he could afford to take me and my mother—who does all the cooking—to a feast or a movie. My father calls him What do you think?

LULU A. B.

Dear Lulu—You ask me what I think, my dear Lulu! My opinion of the young man's good taste is not flattering. Anyone who occasionally accepts hospitality and never makes a return gesture lays himself open to very unpleasant surmises, and I can hardly blame your father for the name he found for the young man who takes and never returns. Why not drop him."

Just Wasting Her Time

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For the past five years a certain man has been coming to see me practically, he takes me out motoring in his car and to various places of amusement—and, yes, I'll admit we do a little petting, too. But he never said a word about MARRIAGE. When he first came to see me, other men used to come too, but one by one they have fallen off and this friend now has me all to himself, as the impression is among our relatives that we are engaged—but we're not. I am 28 but look younger.

My sister wants to take me to California with her. Mother says I should speak to my friend first —between them all I'm nearly crazy. What would you suggest?

LENA C.

Dear Lena I don't wonder you feel upset. And I'm delighted you've a chance to go to California where I hope you'll forget about the man who has wasted five years of your precious youth! I wouldn't say him his "intentions" either, if he knows you're going away and doesn't say anything—it's obvious he hasn't any intentions.

Miss Fairfax has two personal letters for the young lady who signs herself Puritan and she will be glad to send these on if the young lady will forward a self-addressed envelope, care of Miss Fairfax, Boston Evening American.

Regal-Looking Evening Wraps

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Oct 23—There's one good thing about winter—provided you don't live at the North Pole or some other region inhabited only by hibernating animals

It's a most sociable season There are more dinner and the after parties, more dances more events of all kinds. Nonsense to dress up and look your loveliest

This years evening wraps are certainly designed to make you the picture of a million dollars. They're regal in line and regal in fabric. And they've got sleeves and collars that make you feel like a medieval princess with a thousand servitors

There are long wraps that trail in gorgeous fashion on the floor There are short wraps that just hug the hipline. But the most in fashion evening wrap is the one that reaches to about halfway between the knees and the ankles.

Fits Just Dress

You'll see this wrap worn more this winter than any other kind. Why? Because it goes best with the most-in-fashion evening dresses. Its lines fit the lines of the dress underneath. Its length is sufficient to keep you warm The most-in-fashion evening dress is the one with the Grecian silhouette. Long lines, moulding the figure in a statuesque way, with soft, rippling fullness near the floor.

The evening wrap that comes half way between the knees and the ankles follows those long statuesque lines, stopping short there where even the fullness begins, allowing it to fall free and gracefully.

This wrap can be smartly worn with almost any evening dress silhouette with the possible exception of the very bouffant skirt. With this sort of dress, the shorter, hip-length wrap is more practical as it does not crush the bouffancy of the skirt

All these new evening wraps are fashionable looking in both fabric and color, and they wrap well to the side, giving an air of warmth and comfort.

Velvets

Transparent velvet is the most fashionable material. It has some warmth and the loveliest colors imaginable

Satin makes some fashionable wraps. But they're practical only if you travel in heated limousines —true, too, of the metal lamés that are being used to some extent

Black is of course the most ever-popular color especially if the evening dress wardrobe is large and varied in color But one of the smartest things you can do is to choose your wrap in the same color as your dress, but a different shade

A rich dark green to wear with green gowns, and other analogous Or a deep coral with a pale pink dress

And if you want to be just a bit exclusive in your fashion, try an evening wrap in white

Ordering the Restaurant Meal

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

1 Will you please tell me how to order a meal in a hotel or restaurant? Should the cocktail and soup and the main part of the dinner be ordered at the same time, or separately?

2 Should the dessert be ordered at the same time, or at the last when the rest of the dinner has been eaten?

1 This depends on your own choice and often on the custom of the restaurant. If the dinner is a table d'hote, usually it is more convenient for the service if we order the courses up to the dessert.

It is always in perfect form if you do not know what is the custom of the restaurant in regard to this, to order each course after which is the more convenient way for you to

2 Usually the dessert is ordered separately, that is, after the main course or the salad (if the salad is served separately) has been eaten. I think that we may assume that this is wise since our ideas about what we wish for dessert may be governed somewhat by our enjoyment of the previous courses.

Bridge Prizes

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN,

Will you please advise me whether it is necessary when having four tables of bridge, to have one or two prizes?

One Dread Fever Is Tamed

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

OF ALL the contagious diseases of childhood, scarlet fever has always been one that a mother most feared. In these days of treatment by vaccine the old-me dread of the disease has diminished considerably

Scarlet fever is highly contagious This contagiousness does not depend upon the severity of the attack. The person with a very mild case may give to another a most malignant type.

Practically all the infectious or contagious diseases begin in the same way. The first evidence is vomiting, or in the case of a child. It may be a convulsion. Almost immediately the temperature goes up. Then we find the patient complaining of a sore throat. There is likely, too, to be intense fever

After a few hours a rash appears on the chest and neck. In the course of two or three days the rash spreads over the entire body, beginning above and gradually extending downward. The rash is not as still like measles, where the eruption first appears on the cheeks

After about six days there is a very peculiar appearance of the tongue which is called "strawberry" tongue.

The complications of scarlet fever are many and some are quite serious. It is no wonder that a mother is frightened at the thought of her child going through the dangers of the disease.

It used to be considered a children's ailment, but an adult exposed to it may have the disease. Every precaution should be taken to keep a scarlet fever patient isolated so as no to expose others.

Answers to Health Queries

H. Q.—What would cause the teeth to stand on edge—this trouble is very sudden? I am in my twenties.

A.—Your diet is probably at fault. Eat more of the lime-producing foods; milk, eggs, fruit, fruit juices, leafy green vegetables should all help the teeth as well as the system in general.

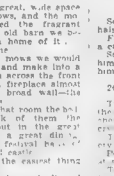
Old Gray Barn Made Into Ideal Home of Rest

By WINIFRED BLACK



Winifred Black

THERE IT stood in the field—the old gray barn

It looked as if it had been standing there for countless years. It was such a part of the gray rocks and gray lichens of the field. You felt that it had sheltered countless generations of cattle and made a cozy and restful place to hundreds of faithful, plodding horses

We begged a key that was hanging in the kitchen of a neighboring farmhouse, a rusty little orphan of a key that looked as if it didn't belong anywhere in any keyhole that was ever fashioned by human fingers

But we fitted it, after much fumbling and fuss—we fitted it into the padlock on the door of the old barn—and in we went

In from the steaming sunshine in from the rushing wind in from the too clear outlines of the outer world—to the dim soft shadows of the barn.

"What a place!

The great roof swooped like the wings of a mother hen shielding her chickens to their safety and comfort.

And at the east, wide space between the mows, and the moment we entered the fragrant shadows of the old barn we began to make a home of it.

And such a home!

The first two mows we would throw higher and make into a long living-room across the front of the house—a fireplace almost half across the back wall—tiled rest all windows

And back of that room the bedrooms and back of them the kitchen, and out in the great middle passage a great dining-room, like the festival hall of the old baronial castle.

Why, it was the easiest thing in the world

We had that house built and furnished—in 10 minute

Do you know what I would do if I were an architect?

I'd take my pencil and my paper and I'd go up and camp in that old barn for a few weeks and I'd let the spirit of it creep into my veins—and out of that barn I'd make a home and whenever anyone who was tired or sick of living came into the range of my experience I would ask him to come and live a week or so in the soft twilight and peace of the old barn that I had made over into a home.

And when I went away he would be rested and calm and all the little worries and gnawing anxieties of civilization would be ironed out of his soul.

But he must not bring any mean envies or petty ambitions into the gray shadows of the old barn.

Confession Frees Cathie of the Crime and Route Jury Verdict

CHAPTER 64

WHILE THE night lights still burned in the corridors and the hush of the night still hung over the jail, a strange matron came to bid Cathie get up

Put on your clothes quickly, and get into the visitors' room," Mrs. Farnsworth. Your attorney and Mr. Moore and some others are waiting."

"Did—did something happen?"

"Now don't ask me. Just get dressed."

So Cathie dressed with fingers that were all thumbs. She was shaking with nervousness, and a half crazy certainty that Chinaman's veiled predictions had all come true overnight, and Gordon had come to take her away

When she saw him, pale as death, his dark hair all tumbled, his eyes shining, her chin began to tremble. "Oh, Gordon -tell me —tell me—"

Slayer Caught

"We've got the murderer. The Spinney woman!" Mr. Allan shouted, pounding the table in his excitement.

"Signed confession!" Somebody else shouted.

"It was Marguerite. Think of it, Marguerite, all the time!" Gordon cried.

Cathie sat down suddenly. Her knees They were doubling up, the way they did in the courtroom

The room went on talking. Gloating over it. Marguerite Spinney . a good night's work . . . lucky break for Mrs. Farnsworth . clear her all right!

"It was what I looked for from the first," Inspector Bidwell was saying.

"What YOU looked for . . You!" Inspector Horgan had to laugh. "Ha, ha—what you said! That's good, Yes. You was saying, the last I remember, when I said that was MY theory that the idea was crazy!"

"Have it your own way. You will anyhow," said Inspector Bidwell, with dignity.

"Listen to the flattest stepping on each other's bunions," Jesse Allan chuckled, as far forgetting as to slap Cathie on the back. "Neither one of them ever had an idea. It was my theory—worked out with the aid of my good friend Monroe—"

"And our good friend, Cheong," Gordon put in rather curtly.

"Aha whispered, "Marguerite, . . . You say it was Marguerite . confessed, to killing Mr. Farnsworth?"

"Yes. Marguerite Spinney, Cathie, I'll admit it's kind of a shock . . . want a drink of water, honey? . . . Cathie, don't—please don't look that way! Why, you should be happy. It clears you, darling It makes you a free woman."

"That's not it," she said in a small, strangled voice "I'm just being selfish, that's all. I'm crying because I thought it was all over, and it's not—"

Murderess Dead

"Why, the new trial will be nothing. They may not even have it. With you cleared, and the Spinney woman dead—"

"Dead . . . Marguerite, dead . . . too? Oh, Mr. Allan—it's just—too much—"

"Now—listen! Listen to me, Mrs. Farnsworth. My God, if you all keep on talking, how can I tell her? The girl doesn't even know what's happened yet. Listen, Cathie Spinney woman confessed, see? And then she committed suicide, see? She found her—raced her over to a rooming house—"

"Let me tell her, Darling. It was Marguerite She shot Mr. Farnsworth. That was why she escaped—afraid of the cross-questioning. She hid in this rooming house, and waited to see how it came out If they had acquitted you she'd never have confessed But rather than see you—"

"That's it. Rather than have me sentenced she took it on herself. Now, don't say she did, Gordon. I know. It couldn't have been Marguerite. She wouldn't have let me go through all this if she did it herself. No—it couldn't be—"

"But she confessed" Mr. Allan cried, waving the paper in his fat hand, "she confessed!"

"Suppose she did," Cathie cried, "what does that prove? Oh, it's no good, I tell you. Just throw your paper away—you're only wasting time. The real murderer is still loose, and Marguerite's dead, and I'm in jail—"

"Listen to me" Mr. Allan put up his hand. He began to read, in a clear, ringing voice:

"To whom it may concern:

"I, Marguerite Spinney, confess that I, and I alone, killed Alfred Farnsworth, on the 19th of April, a little after 12 o'clock, in his house. I have no accomplices, nobody knew it but me

"First I thought I would kill Chester, God knows he is not fit to live. Then I thought I would take the old one first, and him next. But now I know I can't do it again, so I hope he gets what is coming to him. I wish I had of begun with Chester, but now it is too late.

"I killed Alfred Farnsworth because he deserved it anyway, all the Farnsworth men are ruthless, and therefore if I didn't he would have listened to his lying son and turned Catherine Farnsworth out. She was not the kind to cope with the Farnsworth men.

Ending Life

"Alfred Farnsworth was cruel to my mother, like his father was before him, and cruel to me, and he was starting in to be cruel to Catherine, his second wife. He ruined my life and he was starting to ruin hers. So I nipped it. I took his gun and shot him when he was asleep. It never hurt him. He did not wake up.

"I am only telling this now because I have to now to save Mrs. Farnsworth. The crazy jury have found her guilty and she won't get out until somebody confesses, so I confess. I should have done it long ago I guess, but how could I know anybody would think she did it? I tried to stop her from looking guilty, by hiding the nightgown and all, but it looks like it was a mistake. Everything I ever did in my life turned out a mistake.

"So I am ending my life, which should have ended before now. I have nothing to live for anyhow. I took from everybody I ever loved. My mother went first, then the time Mrs. Farnsworth was taken, then Chester went back on me. That was his father's doings. He poisoned his mind against me. He would have married me otherwise After that I took my baby, but I never told Chester that. He thought little Chester was still living, and paid me all I asked until lately That was one thing I put over on him. The money never got wasted, I sent it all to a sanitarium for tubercular children. It was the only Farnsworth money ever went for charity, I guess.

"I hope Mrs. Farnsworth exonerates me for not telling before. It wasn't my fault. I thought sure they'd leave her off. I wanted to get even on Chester before I went, but now it is too late because when this is found I will be dead.

"I don't wish Chester's wife any bad luck, but I want her to know that I had him first and he would be loving me yet if he hadn't been altered wounding that listened to his old father. I hate weak men. So she is welcome to him, I sure got over my love for him.

"This is written on the eighth day of May, and I hope it will be good and legal without a witness.

"Signed: Marguerite Spinney."

Mr. Allan's voice was trembling and ringing to the last word When he had come to the end he folded the paper carefully, and returned it to his pocket

All four men looked at Cathie She tried to speak. Failed Tried again, and managed one word. "Dead"

Gordon Moore nodded He answered her in another word. "Opium"

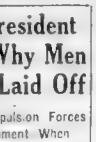
Rail President Tells Why Men Are Laid Off

Stern Compulsion Forces Retrenchment When Freight Drops

—By B. C. FORBES—

New York, Oct. 23—This column has been running full ten col. of news to make room for the following address by the president of a railroad company. It is published because it will serve a very useful purpose.



B. C. Forbes

Names are of course omitted:

"No one knows how can play Atlas and carry the world on its shoulders. I believe that during the winter and spring months a good many roads, and I would call your attention to the matter ourselves especially, did all we could to keep things going. It is too bad indeed that in order to keep the ship from sinking, some people had to be set afloat. We minimized this as much as we could.

"As far as freight train service is concerned, it is almost directly responsive to the amount of business that there is, and the traffic is not there we simply have not the freight trains to run. We have taken off very few passenger trains.

"We have also established a rule that our employes who were laid off must have preference in connection with jobs open anywhere on our lines.

"But there is another side of this. Nearly all of us have made mistakes in our personal affairs during the last six or seven years. The era of living in fancied riches ended in a sudden stop when the bubble burst. That involves a lot of painful adjustments, corporate and personal. The best thing we can do individually is to look over what we have done in the last several years that show errors in judgment or lack of reasonable thrift, and then endeavor to correct that situation by mending our ways.

"Another element that always teaches us from as far back as we can go, that there was a constant lesson being taught and a constant reminder on the part of the wise leaders that it was prudent to store up something against the rainy day; that the seven good years were apt to be followed by seven lean ones—even the squirrels that lay in something for the winter seem to have a better understanding of this rule of investment than many people have. No squirrel mortgages his winter supply of nuts to his neighbor in order to have a good time in the fall.

"And so when we are talking about the employment of labor we should have in mind also that the people who have saved up their money and who may be in their old age dependent upon the income from their savings to live, are also entitled to consideration. They have exercised thrift, self-denial and economy practiced in many instances so far as incomes are concerned, have not received any advance over what was coming to them 10 years ago.

"Our company is paying the same rate of dividend now that it did 58 years ago.

"I certainly feel that we ought to do all we can to maintain employment and it is too bad that the machinery of our civilization still creaks so and moves so awkwardly that a job cannot always be found for the man who is willing and able to work; for people thus out of employment surely at large has to make provision during depression, and this should be done with as little injury to the independence and self-respect of the people taken care of as is possible.

"We are not cutting down expenses on our lines because we like to, or by laying men with out the deepest feeling of regret; but our shipments of motor vehicles, for example, are but 60 per cent of those of last year—and we need in very considerable degree to be governed accordingly.

"I am hopeful that out of the lessons of this last five or six years we may find a way to mitigate the results of inability to give full employment in periods of depression."

You see, the picture has two sides.

VICIOUS BEAR RUMORS ARE UNCHECKED

By FRANK H. MELOON

The Stock Exchange's action to check vicious bear rumors does not appear to have brought results as yet. These rumors continue apparently unchecked. The latest such rumor declared void building contracts with Warren Bros., the great Boston pavers, had been cancelled by the Pevians government. Vice-President Ralph L. Brown of Warren Bros. co promptly stiked the attack out of the darkness by declaring the company had not been advised of any such move. We would say that the Peruvian Boston paver has not a dollar in property or money in Peru.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht

In Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the German Reichsbank the Bond Club of Boston to-day entertained one of the most prominent financial speakers since its organization. Dr. Schacht is a world-standing banking executive of Germany in 1923 he was executive director of the Handelsbank (Commercial Alliance). In 1915 he became a director of the Dresdner Bank, and in 1923 the head of the Darmstadt and National Bank. Dr. Schacht will discuss conditions in Germany.

Prime Minister MacDonald, at the London motor show, hinted that the British government is considering revision of horsepower as tax basis, and that the British automotive car industry could compete more successfully with American models especially in export markets.

In the United States no movement has yet taken definite shape to lighten the taxation borne by the automotive industry. Needlessly high gasoline, "excise," registration and other taxes imposed on the automobilist in this country definitely curtail his buying power, directly in automotive but also in other lines.

Frequently we have heard it declared in State at that "all American industries are prosperous." This, of course cannot be disputed, but rather few people realize to what a degree the city of Lowell now are employed. Stuart Chase in his new book "Men and Machines" estimates that 42,000,000 Americans are "gainfully employed." These figures naturally indicate the vast army on the public pay roll as well as many others not employed in manufacturing or distribution.

In a special study of the African [illegible] in this month, few weeks ago we revealed the fact that American interests were large holders of potential red metal areas on the Dark Continent. Today a Wall street writer [illegible] in:

"American capital seems to be getting a very strong foothold in south African copper development. American Metal Co., already a large holder of South African mining stocks, has acquired another block of 1,800,000 shares of two large prospects. Newmont Mining owns lose to 1,000,000 shares of South African Development, and Mayflower is another large holder. There also are said to be other holdings outside the three companies mentioned. When South Africa becomes a big factor in copper America interests will have something to say about regulating production."

As published in some of the morning newspapers the news of Waltham Watch Co is going on a schedule Monday with about 50 per cent of employes working. The plant has been virtually shut down for three weeks, previous to which it had been operating on the usual other schedule.

Chile Copper to Pay at a $2 Rate

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Directors of Chile Copper Company today voted the third dividend reduction of the year declaring a quarterly payment of 50 cents a share, against 62½ cents three months ago and 75 cents six months ago. The dividend is payable Dec. 15 to stock record a. Most of the stock is owned by Anaconda Copper Mining Company.

Electrical Output for Week Larger

Electrical output of United States for week ended yesterday rate totaled 710,000,000 kilowatt hours, 4in of 25 per cent over previous week and 2.7 per cent above same week in 1928 but decrease of 3.5 per cent from corresponding week last year according to National Electric Light Association

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

The new lows reached this week may have been the result of the arrogant bear element's desire to demonstrate the falsity of the theory that the lows of Saturday morning represented bottom. Nevertheless, there was modest rebound from those lows on Monday, so that it might be that the test as to their permanency is still underway. Certainly, the markets this week have been highly orderly affairs, with no evidence of anxiety to sell except with a careful precision.

It was rather surprising, perhaps disappointing, that the stock market failed to respond to continued favorable developments in spite of the strength of wheat, cotton, sugar and other food commodities may have been due to evidences of additional uncertainty surrounding the price of copper.

Butler Subsidiary Makes Expansions

Four more stores have just been opened by Scott Stores, Inc., wholly owned subsidiary of Butler Brothers, according to Frank B. Cunningham, president. The stores are located at 4173 Archer ave., Chicago, Ill.; 3440 M st., Iowa City, Iowa, and Carbondale, Ill. There are now 5 stores in operation, making a total of 12 stores. Headquarters are in Boston in Akron, O.

Nimble Traders in Woolworth

Nimble floor traders have been rather active in Woolworth at times recently because the stock has been moving within a sufficient range to make quick profits possible, while at the same time the risk involved is smaller than in most other shares. Because of prospects of increased business between now and Christmas it is considered likely that the issue will become more popular in the coming months. One of the most surprising developments has been that talk of the possibility of an increase in the current $2.40 a share dividend to a $3 a share rate has been heard several times, even when the general market has been strong, as of late.

Wrigley Earnings Estimated at 86

Trend of earnings of Wrigley, seemingly ignoring the current depression in general business and estimates in conservative quarters are that approximately $6 a share will be earned for the present year compared with $5.80 a share reported for 1929. The company has an excellent earning record and is in a strong financial position

Paramount Expands Foreign Business

Paramount is reported to be extending steadily its foreign business which is being shown in increased revenues. Film rentals abroad are still running at about 50 per cent in excess of the 1913 rates and business in Great Britain England and France is likely to be come more important as time passes, so far as earnings are concerned

Hershey Obtainable at a Good Yield

Those who were credited with considerable activity in Hershey Chocolate a few months ago and who have been unusually quiet in recent weeks, are again talking of the prospects of the company. They point out that the common stock is selling on a basis to yield approximately 6 per cent or more Earnings for the first six months amounted to $4.06 a share, compared with the current dividend rate of $3 a share per annum.

Odd-Lot Buying Still Increasing

A number of commission houses report odd-lot investment buying for cash still is increasing. Stock purchased is being taken out of Wall Street. That type of buying usually will not affect liquidation, in so far as the market is concerned. In addition, support from more important sources has been developed recently. Whether their purchases will have been for a turn or for long pull has not been indicated.

Sees Accumulating Area Reached

One prominent observer says "an accumulating area has been reached when most of the selling pressure is out. He says that this should not be taken to mean an advance is coming immediately. At certain times, he says stocks reach an area which should be a buying range for long term accumulation. Patience may be required of those who take profits on a scale buying basis, later the purchaser will be able to realize a good profit on carefully selected holdings.

American Smelting Near Former Low

Within a fraction of its former low American Smelting & Refining's yield is close to 8 per cent failed to attract large demand Earnings of this company naturally have been affected by the low copper prices, but it is rich in ore reserves, so that the present dividend would not be in danger unless the depression persists well into next year.

Pet Milk Is at Its Low

Weakness in Pet Milk which touched a new low for the year was attributed to special liquidation incident to the recent buying movement.

duPont Sold on Earnings

Recent selling of duPont was not entirely bear pressure, as charged, was evident from the third quarter report showing falling off in earnings to $1.60 a share from $1.80 in same period last year. Profits of $2.85 for the nine months against 3.84 last year make doubtful continuance of extra dividends until earnings improve.

Kroger Grocery Responds to Sales

That recent demand for Kroger Grocery has been based on actually favorable developments with the company was indicated by the official announcement that initial upturn in sales the year was without equal during September.

National Power & Deflated Utility

With most public utility stocks still selling well above the low levels established one or three years ago National Power & Light at present is selling lower than it did in 1928 when it started its present expansion program. Since that time the size of the company have expanded materially and interests close to National Power estimate net income in excess of last year. Earnings for 1930 are estimated at about $2.50 a share as compared with $2.12 in 1929.

United Corp. and Alleghany

Some of the persistent selling noticeable in United Corporation undoubtedly reflects nervousness occasioned by the experience of Alleghany Corporation whose weakness has been due to the sharp appreciation in its stockholdings

Skelly Oil May Reduce Dividend

Unsettlement in the crude oil industry probably influence directors of Skelly Oil to either reduce or omit the dividend on the common stock. At present the company pays dividends at the rate of $2 annually. Operations of the company thus far in the present year have been fairly well maintained, but the sharp decline in crude oil prices will be unfavorably reflected in the inventory position of the company

Skelly Oil at present has large stocks of crude oil on hand which were acquired at relatively high cost in proportion with the decline in crude oil prices. Incidentally, with the price declining period past there is little prospect for an inventory improvement in the out look for the oil industr

Phelps Dodge Adds Shares

Phelps Dodge Corp. has listed with New York Stock Exchange 200,000 additional shares of stock for trading upon notification to exchange of their issuance. This will make the total number of shares for which listing has been asked 2,922,115. Authorized capitalization is 3,000,000 shares and total shares outstanding at present 2,722,115.

The additional 600,000 shares are to be issued in exchange for 600,000 shares of the Copper Electric Products Corp. recently purchased by Phelps Dodge Corp. This is the total outstanding capital of National Electric Products Corp.

National Electric Products Corp. produces metallic and non-metallic conduits, underfloor ducts, outlet boxes and fittings, switches and rubber covered cable, high-voltage paper and lead covered cables, copper rods, bus bars, copper wires, transmission stand, signal wires, bare stranded copper tubing, condenser tubes enameled wires and rods Productive capacity of its plants is stated to be in excess of 200,000,000 pounds of fabricated copper and 150,000 tons of steel a year.

Fabricated Steel Awards Run High

Fabricated structural steel awards of 48,000 tons the past week are the largest since middle of July. The total for the contracts is 16,870 tons for a bridge over Susquehanna river, Philadelphia subway section requiring 9500 tons.

Earnings Report Comparisons Made

Earnings reports, compared with the corresponding periods of a year ago, and dividend announcements by leading companies, shape up as follows:

	Since Add ins	Last year's
Increased earnings	74	3
Decreased earnings	116	17
Increased dividends	20	21
Increased dividends	23	2
Decreased dividends	30	2

Tax Selling Is Started Early

Due to the normal low prices for week over the last six weeks

there has been much tax selling noticeable particularly in the oil, copper and railroad issues. Tax selling this year has occurred somewhat earlier than usual and many who began selling when the market started down on Sept 11 are now willing to buy back at much lower prices. This repurchasing may be a long way toward offsetting belated selling for tax purposes.

Commodity Talk More Favorable

More favorable talk about commodity prices is being heard lately Many who have been bearish on commodity prices now are saying that grain, cotton, rubber, silk, copper and other commodities will be higher before the end of the year

Fisher Body Is to Employ 6000

Fisher Body Corp. will resume operations in assembly plants throughout the country Monday after a three weeks' shutdown for inventory. Operations are expected to reach a substantial basis by Nov. 1, with 6000 to 7000 former ings in employees back on payrolls.

STOCK PRICES RALLY IN BOSTON

Prices were rallied sharply in trading on the Boston Stock Exchange after the forenoon session that displayed a weak tone. Several issues were worked into fresh low territory, with losses ranging from 1 to 5 points, but the rally of the afternoon wiped out the greater part of these declines.

Among the issues dropping to new low were American Founders, Calumet & Hecla, Eastern Gas & Fuel and New England Telephone. Boston & Albany recovered an early loss of 2 points.

Edison gained 4 points, Island Creek 2, American Telephone 2, General Electric 2¾ and Gillette 1½. Mineral gains were recorded for Pacific Mills, Reece Button Hole Machine and United Founders.

U. S. Government issued around a point, Boston Elevated dipped a point as did Boston & Maine preferred.

Consolidated income account of Berkshire Fine Spinning Associates for year ended June 30, 1930, shows a net loss of $125,743 after deduction of $178,296 and a shutdown in the company in excess of $400,000.

Statement issued by company said in part

"Under prevailing conditions, directors deeming it conservative cash have not declared a dividend on either class of stock."

At annual meeting L. S. Chace was elected a vice-president.

George A. Gaston, president in charge of the property of the Central Vermont Railway, has sailed from New York on the Aquitania for London. Mr. Gaston, who is going abroad on financial business for the Canadian National Railways, expects to be in England about three weeks.

SPECTATOR'S VIEWS GIVEN

(By SPECTATOR)

It is worth noting that never before in the past 50 years has the stock market been advanced so far as it has during the past 13 months without a bull market in stocks setting in.

Ninety common stocks, including 50 industrials, 20 railroad and 20 public utility issues sold to return a yield of 4.72 per cent on October 1, 1930, as compared with a yield of 3.16 per cent on the same date last year, according to a compilation made by the New York Stock Exchange firm of Carlisle Bargeron.

Of 5020, against 3.46; railroad stocks 3.7000, against 4.22, and utilities 3.6000, against 4.22.

Auto Stocks Low

For the first time in a number of years, a majority of the listed automobile issues are selling at or selling at levels below the book value of their assets.

Business Picking Up

The weekly statement of reporting member banks of the Federal Reserve System again reveals an encouraging increase in commercial borrowings. This week's total of $61,000,000 makes an increase of $36,000,000 for the first half of the month, and is a definite indication that there is a slow but nevertheless unmistakable pickup in general business

BOND MARKET TREND MIXED

New York Oct 23—The trend of bonds was again confused today despite the absence of any new developments in the money market. The domestic market has found a week shares market an obstacle to recognition of the fine showing recorded it to the best level since early in 1929.

Each reaction in the share market has brought a flurry of selling, in bonds which in some instances proportions, has had the cumulative effect of carrying second and third grades issues back to or below check lows for the year

Municipal bond issues totaling more than $71,000,000 were publicly offered. The principal issues in this group were the 1½ per cent loan of the State of Minnesota.

Reports indicating that two large issues the $16,000,000 Empire Gas & Power & Light and $60,000,000 Columbia Gas & Electric are being groomed for offering soon has revived interest in the prospect for a heavy winter program of financing for utility companies.

Some observers expect that the low prices for bonds and supplies will influence utilities to complete their heavy construction schedules into 1931, thus avoiding the flotation of additional loans.

Bank of England's Reserve Increases

London, Oct. 23 (AP)—Weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes in pounds Total reserve increased 3,627,000, circulation decreased 2,533,000, bullion increased 1,104,000, other securities decreased 6,000, public deposits increased 13,536,000, other deposits decreased 12,627,000, notes reserve increased 3,631,000, Government securities decreased 665,000.

Government Is in Lead in War on Depression

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

PARALYSED by fears, inertia and a narrow conception of self interest, private business in the United States, in spite of lip service to the slogan "more business in government and less government in business," waited for the government to take the initiative in organizing constructive economic forces against the depression

M. S. Rukeyser

After the White House conferences last Nov. and the President Hoover turned over the job of continuous organization to a voluntary group of private business men, known as the National Business Survey Conference, headed by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The conference, useful as a fact finding agency, scarcely proved itself a major factor in intervening in the business cycle In fairness to the business men it must be said that the White House last fall, hearing rumblings of criticism against sacred precepts, reiterated on the program for a permanent council for economic co-ordination.

With the depression lasting longer than the average period, President Hoover in his eagerness for quick remedial action to initiate suffering from unemployment next winter, has turned from the voluntary organizations of private business men to a cabinet committee, which will be the focal point of operations. President Hoover has not authorized to stand by and let the storms blow over, as urged by those who would well fed persons, who advised against doing anything artificial.

The fallacy of the do-nothing argument is that the government does not start with a clean slate Depression has been caused in part by "artificial" acts of the past, including the tariff the inflationary Federal Reserve policy of 1927, restricted immigration, farm "relief," and a variety of other artificial interferences with the working of the law of supply and demand. Having inherited this economy with artificial influences, the government now feels that it might have to use some "artificial" medicine in order to hasten a cure And yet prudence dictates that such remedies be applied with great discretion least the cure start fresh maladies.

Local governments in New York, Detroit, the State of Ohio and elsewhere, and the federal government at Washington are attempting to supply economic guidance at a time when affirmative leadership is sorely needed. Speeding of public works and private construction will help tide over the emergency, which in time will be ended by the tendency of consumption to go on eating into accumulated savings, thus creating shortage, which will constitute the basis for a renewal.

President Hoover, believing that American business will recover before world business, has designed his relief plan largely in domestic terms. On the other hand, Dr. H. Schacht, former dynamic head of the German Reichsbank, contends that, since the depression is international in character, the remedy must be international. He would have business men and bankers of the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium and Germany gather to forge long time credits for permanent improvements in the "backward" countries, similar to forging available outlet for the excessive capacity of the factories of industrialized countries.

"I think the time has come to build up an international economic authority which will take things in hand by concentrating activities, and which will be strong enough to win the following of the investment public and induce them to back their feeling of safety," Dr. Schacht, who is lying a series of lectures in this country, pointed out.

"Such an international economic authority should be composed of industrialists and bankers of all the countries concerned, with a view to developing world trade by joint action. The industrial nations have reached a certain prosperity; their working classes enjoy a certain high standard of living. This standard of living cannot and must not be reduced. It must be maintained because much it is threatened at present by the economic structural changes which the war and its consequences have brought.

"We must try to restore employment wherever it is lacking. This can only be done by fostering the development of the still backward countries which heretofore have not yet enjoyed the same level of prosperity and only by bringing them slowly up to this level. What we need is not resignation, but action."

RAILS' HEAVINESS PUTS BRAKE ON STOCK RALLY

New York, Oct. 23—Utilities and Industrials were leaders in a moderate recovery on the New York Stock Exchange today. Rails were applied to the advance by the weakness of Van Sweringen and other rail issues. About 20 carriers went to new lows on the movement.

Early advances of $2 to $5 a share in industrial and utility issues were cut in half when the trend was turned draggingly downward in late trading.

SOME GOOD GAINS

Issues up $2 to $3 a share included American Can, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Sears-Roebuck, Union Carbide, American Tobacco B and American Telephone.

U. S. Steel and Westinghouse gained $4 a share, but finished with the day's best gains cut in two.

Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie and Nickel Plate sagged almost $3 a share, but finished with the day's best gains cut in two.

Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie and Nickel Plate sagged $3 a share, Pere Marquette, 2nd, $2 and Pere Marquette, 1st (new) dropped $20 a share.

In the rail heaviness of the Van Sweringen group was notable. Although Chesapeake & Ohio has maintained its earnings this year better than most trunk lines, such lines as Pere Marquette, Nickel Plate and Erie have been adversely influenced by the slump in automobile manufacturing and slow steel mill operations.

The stock of Alleghany Corporation, the holding company, has been depressed by the reduced asset value of its holdings. Since some of these stocks are pledged as collateral against the Alleghany Corp. bonds and Van Sweringen Corp. notes, there has been some hasty selling of those liens, although it is reported that ample collateral is being easily maintained.

Third quarter earnings statements comprised the bulk of the day's corporate news, and were about in keeping with conservative expectations. Deferred recovery in corporate earnings has probably been responsible for much of the downward readjustment of share prices.

Some brokers are advising their customers that this readjustment seems to have been completed in many cases. Conspicuous in the day's batch of statements was that of duPont, which earned $1.03 a share in the third quarter, against $1.80 a share on a slightly smaller number of shares in the same period of 1929. Almost half this reduction, however, was due to lessened returns from its General Motors investment.

National Biscuit report was a bright spot, showing $1.40 a share, as increased from 80 cents a year ago, calculated on the same number of shares.

Although Wall Street has been rather deaf of late to predictions of business recovery, optimistic analyses presented by speakers at the annual conference of major industries at Chicago appeared to have been reassuring.

Furthermore, Wall Street expects speakers at the meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute tomorrow to present a constructive outlook.

Tomorrow, U. S. Steel's quarterly statement due next week, commission house statisticians are busy making forecasts, and generally they look for about $2 a share, amply covering the $1.75 dividend. Persons who were predicting an extra dividend of $1 a short time ago, however, were less confident.

MONEY ABUNDANT

Call money continued in abundant supply at 2 per cent, with large outside offerings and few takers at 1½. Bankers state that abundant money may be expected almost indefinitely on the basis of the present outlook.

The supervisory views of President T. E. Macauley of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada that the Federal Reserve System purchase a half-billion dollars' worth of government securities in order to further ease the money market and assist in the rehabilitation of business did not meet with official Washington favor today.

High officials said that the money market was already exceptionally easy, with interest rates lower than at any time during the reconstruction period. While commercial rates outside of New York City were as low as 2½ per cent, money rates, officials said that such a ratio always existed and always would.

There has been no indication of an increase in commercial loans, it was declared.

George M. Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee of the Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co., and a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, expressed doubt that the purchase of 500,000,000 of government bonds by the Federal Reserve System would have the desired effect on commodity prices and business conditions.

President E. W. Edwards of Fifth Third Union Trust Co. of Chicago said:

"I heartily agree with statement of Mr. Macaulay of Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada. His position is economically sound and if we are ever to stop the vicious circle of falling stock and commodity prices and headlong deflation, we must initiate some such scheme to right matters."

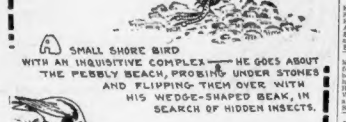
CURIOUS CREATURES

By RICHARD A. ADDISON—



"PUT ON THE SPOT"

ilish look at the closed bathroom door made her obey him. She walked slowly across the room toward him, still and staring.

Monk's left hand, also covered with blood, hung limp. He fumbled in a pocket with his right hand, and slowly drew out a revolver. He was swaying so that it seemed he would collapse any moment.

Punched Ticket

"They punched my ticket," Monk whispered, his voice hissing and crackling like waxed paper, "and I'm just about to my station, but I'm gonna take one bad Guinea along."

He jerked his revolver in the direction of the whistling.

Annie felt she had to spar for time. Now that the moment had come, she was willing to sacrifice herself to her, for Goldie, because Goldie was a child of God, a Kid's God, and the memory of the Kid was here.

"He put us all on the spot—all of us—all gone—wiped out—all but me."

Annie stared, wide-eyed. The man couldn't be joking. Delirious! That was it.

"He said as there an' he stayed here, Gleason an' the cops clipped us. I couldn't run. It wouldn't get me where he was. I wouldn't let that mob knock him off. I'll do that myself—that's what I saved for—I prayed to be spared for that—for this—"

Annie heard, dumbfounded.

"Oh, no," she breathed. "Not Goldie . . . you're out of your head . . . here, lay down—lemme get you a slug o' rye—"

"Slug hell! I'm copsetted. I drove all the way here—like I am—an' on my nerves. I'll last long enough to settle up for the boys—"

Annie sprang between him and the door. She held out her arms to bar his way.

"Get the h——l out o' here," he shrilled. "or I'll drill you. You're wors' enemy, you dumb dame . . . an' you knocked off Kinky King!"

"Yeah—I did!"

"What a laugh! For killin' the Kid! Well, Kinky had nothin' to do wit' it . . . there's the Big Boy—in-there——" and he pointed with his gun.

"Wh-what! G-goldie? He—my Kid?"

"Sure. Who d'you think worked that typewriter? Chinup. Can put him up to it? Goldie, Why? Recua' the greasy rat had a yen for you! It cost many a good guy's life when he flopped for your red hair an' your——"

She stood, glassy-eyed, petrified, swaying.

"On the soul o' me mother, I swear it! I wouldn't o' never touched Goldie said the Kid was cousin' the mob an' had to go . . . now I'm gonna—get out o' my way——"

In a daze, Polack Annie sidestepped.

"I'll make it," gurgled Monk. "I'll square the kid—an——"

Annie leaned to glare with volcanic hate at the door behind which was the man who had delivered her—had defrauded her—had betrayed her. She realized with sudden shock like an icy shower that the whistling had ceased. The door was half open. Goldie stood there, still with lather on one side of his face. He was grinning. But his eyes were hard and bitter. He laughed. It was forced, but it was loud.

Monk Recoiled

Monk reeled, pulled himself forward with a spasmodic effort, then sank to the floor from which he rose. Slowly, painfully, he raised his weapon. It seemed many minutes to Annie. She was frozen stiff.

Goldie's arm suddenly whistled. A gold and silver streak flashed across the room. The revolver thumped on the carpet. Monk's wrist fell limp and lifeless. A thin streak of blood oozed down it. Goldie's razor lay beside the revolver. Goldie strode toward the dying man, whose eyes were welled with tears and whose shot body roc'red. Still Annie couldn't move.

Goldie's gorilla arms lifted the inert Monk. He held him aloft and out. Goldie was whistling! He twined his fingers around Monk's throat, around the spent man's slender windpipe. Goldie shook him. Long shakes, ending with jerks. Each time Monk's gory head popped back and forth. The fifth time. A crack like the tidy, high snap of a blacksnake whip. Monk's body sagged. Goldie looked down at it a moment. Then he flung it into a corner.

Annie still stood riveted. Horror possessed her. Panic couldn't move her. Goldie turned toward her—and bowed!

"You — said something" he added, in supreme mock gallantry. She said nothing.

Goldie laughed.

Houghton & Dutton Co. will begin the celebration of its Founders' Day each tomorrow. The celebration began its career in 1872, with formation of a partnership between Benjamin B. The Jew and His Charity

Boston to Raise $750,000

With a munificence that commands the admiration of all their fellow citizens, the Jewish people of Boston have begun to raise their charity fund of $750,000. It is deserving of unbounded success, notably at this period when the appeals for relief may exceed the resources of all our beneficent organizations.

The charity of the Jew is epic. It is, in fact, historical. By force of circumstances he has been obliged to sustain himself and his neighbor through the ages in a world in which intolerance all too frequently has gotten the upper hand over kindliness and brotherly love.

The inheritance of charity is an attribute not lost to our Boston Jews. We of Boston know them intimately and the generosity of their donations, taxing the slender funds of many of them, attracts our respect and our commendation.

Mayor Curley truly said that the city of Boston looks with anxious eyes upon their campaign, that its example may stimulate the liberality of all our other citizens in their respective charities.

Nor will intelligent people interested in the progress of events in these uncertain times fail to give heed to the striking observation of Rabbi Silver. "If capitalism," he said, "will not rise to the challenge of this hour when millions are in want, and take up the burden of those who cannot carry the burden, it deserves to be destroyed." Enlightened capital WILL respond to the needs of the day.

No Prohibition Debate

No "2 O'Clock in the Morning" Courage

Professor Hall and his complement of dry advocates expressed a yearning desire to debate the prohibition question from the public platform.

With that desire we were all in accord. Here we were to have at last a cessation of those interminable ex-parte conventions, in which the drys gather in one hall to listen only to the heavenly merits of the Eighteenth Amendment and the wets in another to cheer the incessant attacks upon the evils it has produced.

The fine old democratic institution of the public debate was to be rejuvenated for the delectation and education of all.

But, alas, the Professor and his associates have permitted their yearning desire to languish and they would now limit their debates to a consideration of the effect of the repeal of the State Volstead act.

Napoleon expressed regret that so many of his Generals lacked what he termed "2 o'clock in the morning courage." The people of Massachusetts can make their own parallel.

The Death Penalty

Notables Discuss It Here Friday

The well-disposed people of Massachusetts who believe that capital punishment should be abolished because it is a savage institution and not a real deterrent to crime have engaged Ford Hall for tomorrow (Friday) night to discuss the penal system of this State and of the Nation.

Whatever your convictions in these matters, you can no doubt pass an interesting and profitable evening there.

The speakers will include Professor Mather of Harvard, Miss Lillian Wald, whose achievements in social-welfare progress rank with those of Jane Addams, and Jack Blake, once a convict, whose experiences came not out of books but from behind the bars.

The meeting comes at a time when the Rockefeller Institute has appropriated $55,000 for a study in Massachusetts of how better to reclaim unfortunate prisoners and restore them to usefulness than to regard them as moral lepers, to be shunned and abandoned.

That Overcoat

Merely a Reminder

Have you bought that new overcoat yet, or that new suit of clothes?

And, equally important, have you given away your old overcoat that is too shabby to wear, or one of those suits that is hanging in the gloom of your clothes closet, and has been hanging there for the last two or three years?

Buying new clothes, new hats, new shoes, new anything will help business.

Giving away old but serviceable garments, shoes, hats, other articles, will help those who face winter without them.

Both need help.

How about helping them NOW?

HARVEST TIME

By NELSON HARDING

It's harvest time for buyers now
And thrifty folks will reap
The benefits of buying things
They need when things are cheap.

Like ripened apples from a tree
The goods are falling fast,
Now is the time for picking up
These bargains, while they last.

Listen, World! -:- Storage

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Cost Greater Than Value of Goods

I'VE JUST paid that dratted storage bill again. Lemme see—how long since I put that stuff in? Two years—three? Five! Heavens, how time flies! And all that time I've been paying four dollars a month. Four times twelve—and five times that? Two hundred and forty dollars! Why, the stuff wasn't worth it—wasn't worth a third of that. A few shabby old chairs and faded pictures . . . and that great lumpy sofa that would never fit into any modern room . . . don't believe I could get $10.00 for the whole lot.

Elsie Robinson

But—you know how it is—we'd had the things in the family since I was a kid. And hundreds of memories—you feel you can't bear to part with things that have memories like that. So I thought I'd store them . . . for a little while . . . until I had a place for them. And now I've spent five years and two hundred and forty dollars on their upkeep!

Two hundred and forty dollars—for sweet sentiment! But think of the brand new stock of sweet sentiment I might have bought for myself with $240!

Think of the fun and service that money might have meant to some poor devil—of the experiments and adventures I might have bought with it mys'lf!

Memories? Why conclude that your childhood memories are the best ones you'll ever get? Why spend all your life on the up-keep of old memories, however sweet, when you might be making new ones? Is sentimentality like that really sweet?

Or is it hoey?

Yet, I suppose I'll go on paying that storage bill. And people will go on admiring me for doing it. They'll think it a sign of a sensitive, loyal nature. Bosh! It's nothing of the sort. I'm just glorifying emotional sloppiness and laziness, that's all. If I had the backbone of a louse, I'd snap out of it—get rid of that old junk—put my money to some real, living use.

And it isn't only a storage bill for furniture. My whole life is filled with storage bills. I'm carrying more junk in my mind and heart than I am in that storehouse—and it's costing me more. Why, I'm lugging along old prejudices that I acquired when I was thirteen. I should have discarded them years ago. Instead, I've treasured them until I've come to think that they are sacred fixtures. I've habits that should have gone out with hoop skirts and gilded hat racks. I've mean little resentments and dumb ideas that are as funny as anything in a museum.

And, believe me, they're costing more than space in a warehouse. They've shut me out from no end of fun and enlightenment — they've been an Oregon Boot on my progress — they've used up precious time and energy and blocked opportunity.

But I go right on, lugging 'em along. Kidding myself that this is a fine, strong, conservative way to be!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Swank Needed in High Society

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—Rumors grow that a supreme effort is being made to inject a shot of swank into New York's tottering social structure—"The 400." It is aimed to recreate something that not only shines with a Ward McAllister effulgence but has the puff of a Parker House roll.

The gradual decadence of society set in about 15 years ago and the tempo of disintegration increased rapidly the past few years. The famed Horseshoe Circle at the Metropolitan opera, once a show window for the favored, is no longer studded with strictly blue bloods.

Real Social Registerites have been slowly withdrawing and collecting at European spas for their festivities. Even Newport turned slightly bourgeoise. And New York was left to a rather hybrid crowd that was ingloriously dubbed "cafe society," featuring white ermine coats.

This clique is comprised of showoffs making the rounds of smart cafes for luncheon and dinner and following it up with night club cheerio. Those tagged as debutantes began to pick up side money endorsing cigarettes, facial creams and sponsoring "ghosted" stories in magazines.

Mothers of aristocratically eligible daughters—the horror of it—went into vulgar trade, opening perfume shops, beauty salons and such, along the Gold Coast. Illustrious names began to be coupled with those of the stage and screen, parlor socialists and unconventionals of an ultra-Bohemia.

Dowagers, who queened it so long, snorted with indignation and further emphasized aloofness. They would not appear in public save abroad. News of activities were withheld from society editors. And bell-cows hibernated for a long sulk. And now comes fresh wind to the lagging sail.

The new society will be limited to exactly 400, in contrast to the quarter million today. It is likely the new leader will be the youthful Mrs. Vincent Astor, who is young, popular and tactful. She is likewise bulwarked by a proper social lineage.

And that noble pastime of the mauve decade—chewing tobacco—is almost a memory in New York. Many things brought about its passing, but the chief deterrent was arrest for violating the anti-spitting ordinance. Tobacco shops keep only a few brands of plug, and out of sight. The only big sale is on the water front.

Frazier Hunt has found the secret of happy travel. He journeys like the seagull—carrying nothing along but his appetite.

The waggish proprietor of a sawdusty eatery on West st. Frenchily flosses up his pencil-scrawled menu with: Soup en bowl, 5 cents; mashed potatoes en pile, 10 cents, and apple pie a la slab, 15 cents.

Likewise a Broadway dance hall's newest dances are: The Lindy Hop, quicker than a flush; The Mooch, wiggles from Harlem, and The Pin Wheel, faster than a top.

Frederick Lonsdale, London playwright, has given Broadway some of its most sophisticated plays. His themes skip from promiscuous cocktail parties to sotto voce perversions. Yet he is not the man about town. He lives in a vine-clad Sussex cottage, writes under a flowering wisteria bower, and at sunset tramps through the woods with his sheep dog. He finds not attended a London party for many seasons.

An editorialist lets go in a half column, wondering what will be done with the left-over supply of peanuts at the Polo Grounds last season. After snapping into a trance, it is a personal conviction he can get a faint idea visiting the Polo Grounds next season.

"I read your articles," writes D. F. G., Flagstaff, Ariz., "and things in New York appear the same as they were 20 years ago. Does nothing change there?"

Nothing. The same fellow still runs the hotel.

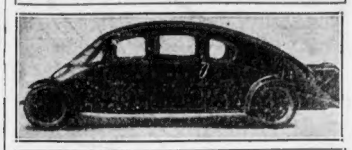
Interesting to Mr. Sloan

Who Will Give Us This Car in Quantity Production?



AN AUTOMOBILE BUILT TO BEAT THE WIND

American manufacturers turn out cars by the millions and are necessarily slow to change their models. Even a slight change may cost millions of dollars.

In Europe where cars are made in small numbers more or less by hand, interesting experiments are tried.

Being in no hurry, making cars few at a time, Europeans can make all sorts of experiments. Here is one of them, a car built to defeat the resistance of the wind, called the "Burney streamline car."

The importance of lines offering resistance to the air cannot be exaggerated. At the United States Aviation Laboratory in Washington, a cowl has been perfected that goes over the airplane engine and increases the speed of the plane fifteen miles an hour.

Traveling along at thirty, forty or fifty miles, air resistance is comparatively unimportant.

But, in the higher "brackets," the top speeds, in which the English thus far are champions, a car of this kind might help you toward the 200 miles per hour mark.

Everybody knows the importance of a well designed hull for a yacht. Failure or success in a race depends on the amount of resistance that the boat offers to the water as it goes through.

Equally important is the shape of an automobile that ploughs through the RESISTING AIR, as a boat ploughs the water.

The automobile above might be made attractive to pedestrians by building a padded cow-catcher out in front to pick up the jay-walker. In fact, the agile might even jump on the cow-catcher, run up over the slanting roof and down over the rear.

Think It Over

Drawn by Hal Coffman

There is deep philosophy in this cartoon by Mr. Coffman, who shows with a brush and a bottle of India ink what is wrong with these United States.

Uncle Sam, with his head above the clouds, can't see that his feet are in the gutter. He moves along with a lily in his hand, full of noble ideals for bettering the human race. He is in earnest about that, and it is a fine trait in his character.

He would make more progress, though, if he would stop sniffing the lily a for minute. While his thoughts dwell among the stars, his steps carry him through mud, slime and corruption.

If he could fan that cloud away he would quickly perceive where he is really going.

Mr. Coffman shows you what a cloud is made of, though it is hardly necessary to do that. You know already, even if Uncle Sam does not.
